World Bank, Tito Discuss Loan to Foil Russian Bloc

3 Delegates Talk To Him in Belgrade; He's Believed Likely To Get $50,000,000

Belgrade, Yugoslavia, Sept. 4 (U.P.).—Marshal Tito conferred yesterday with three delegates of the World Bank on his bid for 250 million dollars in loans to defeat the Russian-bloc boycott of his government, it was disclosed today.

Reliable sources said the bank delegates sought the interview and were impressed favorably by the outline Tito gave them of his position.

It was said, also, that Tito was likely to get a loan of 50 million dollars.

An official statement said Tito and Vojo Guzina, vice chairman of his federal planning commission, conferred with A. S. G. Hoar, assistant loan director for the International Bank for Reconstruction and Development; S. R. Cope, a bank loan officer, and Martin Rosen, a bank economist.

Two Are Britons, One American

Hoar and Cope are Britons. Rosen is an American. They have been in Yugoslavia three weeks. They have visited industrial centers and are known to be pleased over the cooperation given by the government in their search for economic facts.

Moshe Pijade, veteran Communist leader, took the quarrel between Tito and the Communist Bureau of Information (Cominform) countries a step further when he told a cheering crowd of 15,000 here:

"The Russians want to turn the people against our leadership but their attempts are producing the opposite effect . . . These threats do not make us waver in the least."

Borba, the Communist Party newspaper, disclosed to Yugoslavs for the first time the reports of the presence of Russian troops on their country's frontier, quoting Hector McNeil, Minister of State, that "the Soviet authorities are allowing reports to spread abroad about the concentration of Russian troops on Yugoslav frontiers which are believed to be true."

Hearers Shout Frenziedly

It is believed here that Russia's threatening attitude of the last month has been due in part to an attempt to frighten off Western countries from aid such as that the banking delegation is considering.

Pijade spoke to a mass meeting of volunteer youth brigades. His taunts at Russia roused his hearers to shouting frenzy.

Nazi's Old Seats Go A-Begging in Bonn Parliament

Bonn, Germany, Sept. 4 (U.P.)—West Germany's new Parliament, to meet for the first time Wednesday, is having seating trouble. No one wants to sit on the right.

The Communists asked as a matter of tradition to be seated on the far left. The Social Democrats have agreed to sit next to them. The Center Party, as in prewar days, will occupy the center block of seats.

But the far right, which used to be occupied by Hitler's minions, has gone begging. Not even the admittedly ultrarightist German Party will sit there.

Harassed officials said today they will have to draw lots to complete the seating plan.

100,000 Homeless

1000 Die In Fire at Chungking

Canton, China, Sept. 4 (U.P.).—A tragic, 18-hour fire gutted central Chungking over the weekend, killing at least 1000 people and leaving 100,000 homeless, the Nationalist Central News Agency reported today.

The agency dispatch said the flames destroyed or seriously damaged more than 10,000 buildings in the wartime Chinese capital, which had been slated to serve again as the Nationalists' chief city.

The blaze broke out at 4 p. m. Friday in the Chungking slums. The cause was not known. Fanned by a dry wind, the flames raced through the residential area and engulfed the business section along the Chungking Bund. The fire was not extinguished until 10 a. m. Saturday.

Retired President Chiang Kai-shek is in Chungking.

Congressmen To Get Facts In Dollar Talks

Administration Plans To Give Key Leaders Up-to-Minute Data

By the United Press

The Administration will keep key Congressmen fully informed on Anglo-American economic talks in an effort to insure their success, it was revealed yesterday.

There is no evidence thus far that the converations, to begin here Wednesday, will lead to new legislation. But the State Department was said to feel that any action finally agreed on will get a better reception if Congress is completely "backgrounded."

Chairman Maybank (D., S. C.), of the influential Senate Banking Committee, already has been notified he will receive up-to-the-minute reports on the talks. Other key Senate and House leaders are expected to get similar reports.

"Climate of Cooperation"

Thus, the Administration apparently hopes to establish a "climate of cooperation" to make things easier if the talks bring out facts which convince United States representatives new legislation is necessary.

Senator Taft (R., Ohio) and several other GOP Senators already have advised the Administration they will oppose any aid to Britain outside of present programs as well as any unusual schemes such as the suggested Anglo-American currency merger.

Senator Flanders (R., Vt.), a member of the Banking Committee, added his voice to that group yesterday. He said Congress is in no mood to have the Administration come up with some new solution to Europe's dollar crisis and then expect it to be approved without change.

If they heed all the warnings voiced by Congress, Secretary of Treasury Snyder and other American representatives will have little area for discussion with British Foreign Minister Ernest Bevin and Sir Stafford Cripps, Chancellor of the Exchequer.

Taft and Senator Millikin (R., Colo.), ranking GOP member of the Senate Finance Committee, have said this country already has done all it can to ease the Empire's dollar dilemma.

Tydings Voices Hope

Chairman Tydings (D., Md.) of the Senate Armed Services Committee, was more optimistic.

He said he feels the American people "realize that Britain is our strongest anchor and support outside the United States." Tydings voiced hope the conference would result in some long-range plan that eventually would enable Britain to stand on its own economic feet.

60 Injured At Concert Of Robeson

Autos and Buses Leaving the Scene Run a Gantlet Of Stone-Throwers

Peekskill, N. Y., Sept 4 (AP). Autos and buses ran a gantlet of stone-throwers tonight in a violent aftermath to a Paul Robeson concert. At least 60 persons were reported injured.

Stones and other missiles hurtled through the air as 10,000 concert-goers left the outdoor grounds near here after a half-hour concert by the left-wing Negro singer.

Bus companies reported that many windows in their vehicles were smashed as rocks flew from a crowd that milled around outside the grounds in protest against the concert. Reports said most of the rioting was by teen-agers.

It was the second time in eight days that a Robeson concert erupted into violence.

Earlier Concert Called Off

A week ago Saturday a scheduled appearance by the singer was canceled by a riot a mile from today's concert.

[The United Press said the car in which Robeson left the scene arrived in New York City at 7:30 p. m., EDT, with two smashed windows and that there were heavy dents on the body.

[Harold Marcus, 22, described Robeson's departure from the concert grounds:

["When the kids started throwing the rocks, one of the deputies—a big guy wearing a blue uniform—came over to us. When he saw Robeson sitting in the front seat beside the driver, he smashed the windshield with his nightstick. By that time the car in front was able to move and we got away from there."]

Peekskill Hospital said 30 persons were brought in for treatment of injuries and 5 kept for further treatment.

(In New York City, police reported that nine persons arriving in damaged buses from the concert, 40 miles north, said they had been injured and were taken to hospitals. Four said their car had been overturned near Peekskill and they boarded a bus for the city.

[Three other New York City hospitals also handled concert casualties—eight at Harlem Hospital, one at Sydenham and one at Bellevue.]

1200 Policemen Alerted

The outbreak of violence came a few hours after thousands of veterans staged a noisy protest parade outside the abandoned golf course where the concert was held.

An estimated 10,000 persons made their way into the concert, while some 4000 others—mostly sympathetic to the veterans' anti-

Barkley Denies Wedding Plans —On This Trip

St. Louis, Sept. 4 (U.P.).—Vice-President Alben W. Barkley kept his "date" today with attractive Mrs. Carleton S. Hadley and said he doesn't intend to get married to her—on this trip.

Barkley arrived late this afternoon by airplane from Memphis.

"I'm just here for a friendly visit," Barkley said. He said he certainly doesn't plan to get married on his long St. Louis visit.

"Any time I do that, I'll be looking you fellows up," he said with a grin.

He greeted Mrs. Hadley and her 14-year-old daughter, Jane, and introduced a friend to them.

He posed for a number of pictures before setting off on a half-hour drive in Mrs. Hadley's car. It was the first time in months they have been alone together.

At Memphis, Barkley remarked he was "just an average guy enjoying the company of a lovely woman."

Scores Marxism, Materialism

Pontiff Assails 'Communism' For First Time by Name

Castel Gandolfo, Italy, Sept. 4 (AP).—Pope Pius publicly attacked communism by name today for the first recorded time in his 10-year reign.

In a vigorous, 1400-word radio address to half a million German Catholics at Bochum, the Pope struck directly at the enemies of the church with unprecedented frankness.

He spoke of the excommunication decree which he said seeks to save the world from "Marxism" and enforce the separation of Catholic and "atheist communism."

In an earlier address to Swiss Catholics the Pontiff referred to the dangers of "totalitarian regimes." Both speeches were liberally sprinkled with attacks on "materialism."

In the past, the 73-year-old Pontiff has avoided direct use of the word communism in referring to the church's enemies.

Observers viewed the Pope's frank attack as the beginning of a new and more vigorous campaign against communism.

The Pope spoke openly of the struggle between rich and poor and between labor and capital. He sought to narrow the gap between these conflicting forces with an

Junkets O. K. With Johnson, Officials Say

Defense Sources Lay Dispute With Thomas To 'Misunderstanding'

By the United Press

Defense Secretary Louis Johnson has no intention of clamping a lid on free air travel for Congressmen, Defense Department sources said yesterday.

They said the Air Force is ready and willing to haul Congressmen wherever it has regular routes and that they are sorry if Senator Elmer Thomas (D., Okla.) got any other impression.

Those assurances were offered after an exchange of letters between Johnson and Thomas concerning a proposed round-the-world trip by a Senate Armed Services Appropriations subcommittee.

Johnson wrote Thomas a few days ago that it might be better if the Senators used commercial air transportation for one leg of their trip from Cairo to Tokyo. He said it would save money and would not put the Air Force in the position of competing with private airlines.

Thomas said Saturday that was all right with him. But he added that he wants an accounting by September 20 of all flights made at Air Force expense by President Truman, Vice President Barkley and other Administration officials.

While refusing to talk for quotation, several Defense officials said that Thomas apparently had misunderstood. And one even admitted that maybe Johnson hadn't been sufficiently explicit. He explained it this way:

The subcommittee planned to sail to Europe aboard the liner America. Once in Europe, they want to fly to various cities and the Air Force already has made necessary arrangements.

Some of the Senators wanted to go on around the world, however, and Johnson suggested that it might be cheaper if they patronized one of the commercial airlines plying between Cairo and Tokyo.

"That's all there was to it," this official said. "The Defense Department was even willing to pay for their tickets because it was felt that procedure would be cheaper

Ohio Flier Averages 386 MPH To Set Tinnerman Race Record

Cleveland, Sept. 4 (U.P.).—Benjamin Walter McKillen, jr., a cracker-jack former Navy pilot from Willoughby, Ohio, whirled around the low pylons at 386.069 miles per hour today to set a new record in the 105-mile Tinnerman Trophy race at the National Air Races.

Flying a red F-2-G Corsair, McKillen was running away at the end of the 15-mile seven-pylon course. His first prize money was $3150.

McKillen captured an additional $500 for the fastest lap—396.351 m. p. h. It was one of the fastest laps in the history of the races.

He set the new Tinnerman record before 58,700 fans at Municipal Airport. Showers caused cancellation of the Indianapolis-to-Cleveland military jet race, earlier.

Wilson V. Newhall, Chicago, raced a gray F-51 Mustang fighter at 379.735 m. p. h. to take second place and $1750.

Give and Take Policy Urged On Democrats

Cox Claims Truman Civil Rights Program Will Stay Bottled Up

By The Associated Press

A leading Southerner, Representative Cox (D., Ga.), told his quarreling party yesterday how to achieve unity:

De-emphasize the fight over civil rights; stress the big issues on which Democrats agree.

Follow a policy of give and take.

Acknowledging there probably always will be differences in the party, particularly over civil rights, the Georgian said the emphasis should be shifted to points of agreement. Cox said that civil rights legislation demanded by President Truman will remain bottled up.

Meanwhile, however, Mr. Truman has beckoned to State's Rights Democrats who deserted him in last year's campaign to come back to the party banner—if they will abandon the battle against the civil rights program.

"The sooner we patch up these highly political, controversial questions and unify," Cox said, "the better it will be for the country. But by following a give and take policy, we could get together on broad fundamental issues."

Aftermath of Strike

A struggle for control of the AFL Hodcarriers' Union here has broken out between right and left-wing factions as an aftermath of the laborers' long summer strike.

On the surface, the fight involves conflicting jurisdictional claims over some 500 apartment-house building laborers between Local 74 and Local 674.

The real battle, however, according to informed sources, is for control of the District Laborers Council, which sets policy and bargains collectively for the seven hodcarriers' locals in this area.

Local 74, with about 3000 members, is numerically as large as the other six locals together. It is said to be run by a left-wing slate, headed by Henry Thomas.

Local 674, with but 300 members, is one of the more militant of the right-wing locals.

Leadership of the two locals clashed early in June when the District Laborers Council voted to permit Local 74 to strike against the Master Builders Association in a demand for a 15-cents-an-hour pay raise.

Three days before, the AFL carpenters in this area walked out on commercial construction valued at 100 million dollars. Right-wingers on the Laborers Council argued against the strike authorization on the ground that the carpenters would tie up construction anyhow and that then the laborers on the projects would be entitled to unemployment benefits.

Left-wingers insisted the strike would be good strategy in winning a pay raise and won the strike permission in a hectic behind-doors session. Neither right nor left-wingers will say much about their secret council meeting, but there have been repeated rumors the stormy debate was accompanied by violence.

But even after approving a strike by Local 74, the other six locals decided to stay on the job. Thus, on a number of projects struck by Local 74, members of the other hodcarrier locals reported to work as usual. Among the latter were the members of Local 674, who are building laborers in the home construction field.

During the strike, which lasted six weeks, Local 74 charged Local

Hurricane Likely to Veer Out to Sea

Winds Hit 95 Miles As Tropical Storm Moves to the North

A 95-mile-an-hour tropical hurricane, located last night some 1000 miles southeast of Washington and moving directly toward the populous Eastern seaboard, is expected to veer out to sea without striking the coast, the Weather Bureau here reported.

At 6 p. m. last night, hurricane-hunter planes spotted the storm 600 miles east of Nassau, Bahamas Islands, moving up at about 8 miles an hour.

The Miami Weather Bureau reported winds of gale force blowing as far as 150 miles from the center of the storm. They were expected to intensify as the hurricane moved north. All ships in its path have been warned to get clear.

The Washington Weather Bureau last night said the storm, if it keeps a straight path, could strike the coast in the Chesapeake Bay region in about four days. Weathermen, however, emphasized the slowness of the storm's movement and predicted it would change course and veer farther out to sea.

They pointed out that the present distribution of air pressure in the Atlantic made it possible the storm would veer north and then northeast out to sea when it arrives off Cape Hatteras.

If the hurricane hewed to its north-northwest general path, they said, it could hit anywhere between the Chesapeake Bay and New England.

The men keeping tabs on the big blow thought until late Saturday it would whip through the Bahamas and then give the Florida peninsula its second lashing of the year. Since then it has veered northward.

The storm was expected to pass well to the east of the Florida and Georgia coasts, which were battered only a week ago by a hurricans that struck with winds as high as 162 miles an hour.

Briton Says Egyptians Visited America 200 Centuries B. C.

London, Sept. 4 (U.P.).—Ancient Egyptians crossed the Atlantic and left their mark on the American continent some 20,000 years before Columbus, Oxford University anthropologist P. L. Collignon said today.

Collignon presented data suggesting Egyptian voyages to the West started about 200 centuries before the birth of Christ.

"It must not be forgotten," he said, "that the Atlantic Ocean in remote times was not the same as it is now. A voyage across the Atlantic may have been much easier in those days, when the whole of Atlantis had not disappeared."

Collignon drew attention to the physical resemblance today between the Basques in southern Spain, many Indian types in South America, and even some Japanese. He said the Basques are of ancient Egyptian origin.

Collignon emphasizes the relationship between place names in South America and Egypt.

He said the name of Tabasco, in Mexico, northwest of Guatemala, is ancient Egyptian, and when translated means "The Land of the Basques"—t-bascu. He said "Guatemala means "the way of the setting sun"—wa-tem-ra. "The Span-

Traffic Kills 227 in U.S.; Drownings Number 21

Highway Fatalities Approach Forecast Before Labor Day Even Gets Started

By The Associated Press

One person died accidentally every 12 minutes as the Nation celebrated the Labor Day holiday weekend.

A count from 6 p. m. Friday showed 295 persons killed by late Sunday night—before the holiday itself had even arrived. Of the victims, 236 lost their lives in traffic mishaps, 21 drowned, and 38 died in a variety of miscellaneous accidents.

The traffic toll mounted steadily toward the 280 which the National Safety Council predicted for the three-day period. It was fed by a hilltop automobile collision in Paola, Kans., where six persons died, five of them in flames. Two men and a boy died in a truck-train collision near Terre Haute, Ind., and a 14-year-old girl rode her bicycle to death against a train at Braidwood, Ill.

In other tragedies, four Iowa men died when their private plane crashed. An Illinois man was killed by a falling tree limb, and another died in a fall from a "Lover's Leap" bluff in a State park.

A year ago, 407 persons died in accidents over the Labor Day week-end. Of those, 293 were traffic victims.

Here is the death toll by States, with traffic, drowning and miscellaneous fatalities listed in that order:

Alabama 7-0-0, Arizona 6-1-0, Arkansas 5-0-2, California 19-1-2, Colorado 4-0-0, Connecticut 3-0-0, Florida 1-4-0, Georgia 6-1-0, Idaho 2-0-1, Illinois 11-2-3, Indiana 10-0-0, Iowa 11-0-4, Kansas 9-0-0, Kentucky 1-0-0, Louisiana 3-0-0, Maryland 5-0-0, Massachusetts

Justice Rutledge Somewhat Better, His Doctor Says

York, Me., Sept. 4 (AP).—Supreme Court Justice Wiley Rutledge's general condition was reported to be "somewhat improved" tonight.

Dr. Elmer Tower said the jurist, who suffered a cerebral hemorrhage, seems to be gradually coming out of a three-day coma.

In a bulletin issued at York Hospital at 7:15 p. m. (EST), the doctor said:

"Justice Rutledge's general condition is somewhat improved. There is a slight elevation of temperature. His pulse and respiration are normal. He is conscious part of the time."

The physician also said the justice, for the first time in several days, is able to speak a little. He said that the jurist asked for ice cream and water.

Dr. Tower added that "the outcome is undetermined."

Today's official hospital bulletin marked the first definite—although slight—improvement in Rutledge's condition since he suffered a second relapse last Thursday night.

He fell into the coma at noon the next day.

The justice was stricken eight days ago at nearby Ogunquit, where he and his wife were vacationing.

Next 60 Days Seen As Crucial for Labor

By the United Press

Labor Day ushers in the most crucial 60-day period in union-management relations since the end of the war, Government officials said yesterday.

They pointed out that Federal Mediation Director Cyrus S. Ching will go to New York Wednesday to start meetings aimed at ending the four-month-old Hawaiian dock strike—and in the seven days following showdown crises loom in wage disputes in the steel, coal and auto industries.

Officials Hopeful

Ching and other Government officials are hopeful that a wave of big strikes involving three million workers can be averted.

Their hopes are pinned to a peaceful settlement of the steel wage dispute. President Truman's fact-finding board is due to make recommendations next Saturday for settling the CIO United Steel Workers demands for a fourth postwar wage increase, pensions and insurance

If the board recommends a wage increase, most industry and union sources believe it will run from 5 to 10 cents an hour, some believe no wage increase will be recommended.

Insurance System at Issue

Both labor and management expect a recommendation on an insurance system since United States Steel Corp., leader in the industry, offered to match employes' contributions under a plan proposed to the union.

The issue of pensions is expected to be referred back to the parties for further study. The companies contended that the issue will be open to bargaining anyway in six months' time.

The most optimistic officials believe United States Steel and Steelworkers President Philip Murray may use the board recommendations for a negotiated settlement sometime before the September 14 strike deadline. All agree that a peaceful settlement will smooth the way for agreement in other industries.

Points to Sales

Prosperity To Continue, Snyder Says

Grand Rapids, Mich., Sept. 4 (U.P.).—Secretary of the Treasury Snyder said tonight that all business indicators point to "sustained prosperity" for the United States.

In an address before the Thirty-second Division Association, he said that Americans have bought nearly 15 million new cars and trucks since the war, 32 million new refrigerators, vacuum cleaners and washing machines, and more than 50 million radios and television sets.

Still, he said, the demand for autos continues high and "in other segments of the economy also, notably housing, supplies have not yet been sufficient to meet the needs of purchasers."

"With consumer incomes continuing at close to record levels and with large untapped resources of purchasing power in the hands of both business firms and the consuming public, adjustments have not proved severe," he said.

But he cautioned that prosperity of the United States is linked closely with economic conditions in the rest of the world and appealed for support for President Truman's program to help backward areas.

He said that cooperation of private enterprise is essential in making American knowhow available to other nations and in financing the program.

"Foreign investment for desirable purposes should be undertaken through private channels so far as possible," he said.

Quick Passage Of Arms Aid Bill Forecast

By The Associated Press

Senator Elbert Thomas (D., Utah) yesterday predicted quick Senate passage of President Truman's program of arms aid to friendly nations—once it finally gets to the floor.

Thomas expects committee approval of an amended bill will be forthcoming shortly—but then it will have to wait until the Senate gets through arguing tariffs.

May Take Two Weeks

This may take two weeks; even longer. The tariff bill, better known as Reciprocal Trades Legislation, is the first major task before the Senate when it returns Wednesday from its vacation.

Arms aid was tagged "urgent" by the Administration and military leaders who backed it in Capitol Hill hearings. Mr. Truman asked for $1,450,000,000 cash to begin arming Western European and other nations to forestall any Russian aggressive ideas. The House slashed it $580,495,000 and sent it to the Senate.

Thomas, an Administration supporter, expressed belief that the Senate Committees on Foreign Relations and Armed Services will approve an arms aid bill within a day or two after hearing Adm. Oscar Badger, former commander of the Asiatic Fleet, in a closed session next Thursday.

The combined committees have agreed not to act finally until they find out what Badger thinks about adding arms for non-Communist China to the Administration's bill, as Senator Knowland (R., Calif.) and some other members want to do.

Thomas told reporters that the United States-British-Canadian economic talks here this week, and the organization meeting of the Atlantic Defense Council in Washington on September 17, will contribute to speedy floor action due to realization that "we ought to be moving."

Democratic leaders in the Committees have made major concessions to Senators Vandenberg (R., Mich.) and Dulles (R., N. Y.). They agreed to reduce arms aid for European members of the Atlantic Pact from the $1,160,990,000 asked by the President to one billion dollars. They decided also to make only 100 million dollars of this available until the Atlantic Defense Council has become a going concern.

Matthews to Talk To Party Session In San Francisco

By the United Press

Secretary of the Navy Francis P. Matthews yesterday joined the list of speakers for an 11-State Democratic conference on "Land, Water and Jobs" at San Francisco September 18 and 19.

Another added starter was Leon H. Keyserling, vice chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisers.

Conference officials said Cyrus Anderson, secretary-treasurer of Railway Labor's Political League, will be among labor leaders attending the sessions. The rally will launch a new vote-getting drive in the Western States.

Registration for public speaking and psychology courses offered by the University of Maryland for military personnel at the Army Medical Center will begin this week, it was announced by Maj. Gen. Paul H. Streit, commanding general.

Carpenters Get Setback From NLRB

By the United Press

Trial Examiner Peter F. Ward of the National Labor Relations Board yesterday gave another round to the independent International Association of Machinists in their long jurisdictional fight with the AFL United Brotherhood of Carpenters.

He found that the Carpenters Union Local 1607 and the Los Angeles AFL Building and Construction Trades Council had engaged in an unfair jurisdictional strike and secondary boycott at Redondo Beach, Calif.

He said the AFL unions had forced two machinists employed by Westinghouse Eelectric Corp. to quit their jobs at a construction project for Southern California Edison Co.

The machinists' union filed charges against the carpenters. The carpenters claimed the millwright and installation work the machinists were performing.

The full five-man NLRB previously had decided, however, that the employer could assign this work to the members of any union. The carpenters lost the first round of the dispute when the board ordered them to cease and desist in their claim to these jobs.

The machinist-carpenter dispute over millwrights' work is more than 30 years old.

2 Grass Roots Exponents Seek GOP Victory Formula

By Thomas Winship
Post Reporter

Johnston Hermann

A former pro baseball player and a former Capitol policeman—neither with an ounce of Wall Street in him—are being paid big money to find a victory formula for the Republican Party.

The legwork of selling Republicanism to the voters became a two-man operation last week with the appointment of Albert B. "Ab" Hermann as a $20,000 executive director of the Republican National Committee.

The other half of the GOP "common touch" team is Victor A. "Vic" Johnston who since last March has been politicking about the country with the title of campaign director of the National Republican Senatorial Committee.

Both have their sights trained on next year's congressional elections when they hope an earthier "new look" on the elephant's face will bring more GOP Senators and Representatives to Washington.

Both Vigorous

Both are vigorous, free-wheeling campaigners who came up the hard way and are more at home hoisting a few at the corner pub than at the Bond Club.

And both men are convinced the Republican Party will remain the voters' second choice until their party stars get down to the "grassroots" and tune the campaign with the thinking of the average man living in a fast-changing age.

Hermann's record would indicate he's no slouch on the circuit. A native of Milltown, N. J., he brought home his sixth winner last November when he steered Robert C. Hendrickson, New Jersey's State treasurer, into the United States senatorial seat vacated by Senator Albert W. Hawkes.

He has called the shots for a total of five senatorial contests in his State. Five times his candidate has won. Hermann bowed into the limelight of electioneering with former New Jersey Governor Harold G. Hoffman in 1934 when he assisted the latter's campaign for chief executive.

Colgate Graduate

The new GOP strategist romped through Colgate University with good grades and 11 letters for major sports.

He was immediately snapped up by the Boston Braves with a starting salary of $1250 a month. He stayed with the Braves four seasons as a utility infielder and left the big leagues with a composite batting average of .290.

Hermann's batting average has been pretty good ever since. The 47-year-old aide is serving the Republican National Committee on "loan" from his last job as administrative assistant to Senator H. Alexander Smith (R., N. J.).

Campaigner Vic Johnston, born on a North Dakota farm of first generation Scotch Highland parents, has been working in the political trade here and in the Midwest since he managed his first political contest in Grand Forks, N. Dak., 27 years ago.

He got his first taste of Washington in 1922 when he put in a three-year stint on the Capitol police force.

But Johnston, also an old hand at "grassroots" vote getting, owes his rise in politics largely to his friendship with Harold Stassen which began in the early 30's.

At Stassen's Elbow

Vic has been at Stassen's elbow ever since the latter made his first successful bid for Minnesota Governor in 1938.

And Johnston's masterminding in the 1948 Republican free-for-all threw such a scare into the Dewey forces, including a couple of primary reverses, that Vic found himself later directing the volunteer division of the Dewey-Warren campaign in Washington.

Few Washington newsmen don't know Johnston. Besides politics, reporters will agree Vic also knows his Wisconsin cheeses.

The 1950 Republican bid for more seats in both houses of Congress, directed for the first time by professional political scientists, will be interesting to watch.

One thing is certain: The Hermann-Johnston team will be out there hustling—and not just on Park ave.

Both Parties Ready to Fight In Senate Over Tariff Laws

Democratic and Republican leaders yesterday set the stage for an old-fashioned bitter tariff conflict in the Senate with stern prophecies of dire results if the other side wins.

Senators resume their session Wednesday after a week's recess—and move right into debate on reciprocal trade agreements extension which is expected to last 10 days or two weeks—some say longer.

Democratic Leader Lucas of Illinois asserted that if the Republicans prevail "it will be the beginning of the end of the reciprocal trade agreements program."

Senator Millikin (R., Colo.) and other Republicans want amendments, contending that domestic producers have not been adequately protected under the program in the past.

Senator Thomas (D., Utah) observed:

"It looks like the good old times when we begin discussing the tariff issue. It takes us back to the 1890s. It may be the making or the marring of the next political campaign. The issue is very, very big."

The Administration is fighting for a two-year revival of the program without the "peril point" restrictions written in by the Republican-controlled Eightieth Congress which passed a one-year extension expiring last June.

The legislation asked by President Truman already has been passed by the House. But Millikin and GOP colleagues are insisting on retention of the "peril point" provision as a safeguard for American industry against any extreme cuts in tariff barriers.

Under it, the President must notify the Tariff Commission of proposed trade concessions in negotiations with other nations. The commission then must advise the President in each case of the point beyond which concessions cannot be made without imperiling United States producers.

The President is not bound by the commission's advice but if he consents to concessions beyond the peril points, he has to report his reasons for doing so to Congress.

Czech Minister Sees Nation Hit By West Slump

Prague, Czechoslovakia, Sept. 4 (U.P.).—Jaroslav Kabes, Minister of Finance, warned today that Czechoslovakia will suffer too if an economic crisis hits the West.

"We, of course, also will be touched by the crisis of capitalism," Kabes told a meeting at Pilsen.

"But our economic system and our (links) with Russia and the Popular Democratic states make us stronger than we would be under other conditions."

Kunming Is Seized By Anti-Nationalists

By Spencer Moosa

Canton, China, Sept. 4 (AP).—A successful anti-Nationalist revolt in Yunnan Province dealt a major blow to the Chinese government today.

The Communists were having serious troubles of their own. A dispatch from Red Shanghai acknowledged that the drive towards Canton was bogged down and that disorders and corruption were widespread behind the lines.

Seizure of Kunming by local anti-Nationalists, apparently intending to make a deal with the Reds, was confirmed by the official Nationalist Central News Agency. The Nationalists forecast suppression of the revolt, but it admittedly has tremendous implications.

Given Three Days to Leave

Reliable reports said local "peace preservation" forces seized Kunming Saturday and gave all Nationalists three days to get out. The two Nationalist airlines and the Chennault Civil Air Transport Line all confirmed they were leaving.

Kunming is famed as the terminus of the wartime American "hump" flights from India. It is the capital of Yunnan Province, strategically bordering Indo-China and Burma.

Anti-Nationalists already had been reported ranging large sections of the province and can be expected to capitalize on the coup.

Rumors long have been current that Yunnan leaders were trying to make a deal to eliminate the Nationalists there in return for Red guarantees to reinstall Lung Yun as governor and let the province alone as a pro-Communist nonbelligent.

Ousted by Chiang

Lung, ousted by Chiang Kai-shek in 1946, is now in exile in Hongkong.

An army spokesman in Canton said the front 180 miles north of Canton was quiet but admitted Red capture of towns 30 miles west and northeast of the big port of Amoy, which is 330 miles from Canton.

AP Correspondent Fred Hampson, writing under Communist censorship in Shanghai, reported meanwhile that bogging down of the push south along the Hankow-Canton railway might "delay the day of reckoning at Canton."

Truman Flies On Labor Day Speech Tour

By the United Press

President Truman flies to Pittsburgh and then on to Des Moines today to deliver two Labor Day addresses dealing with labor and farm legislation.

The labor speech will be delivered in Pittsburgh at noon, EDT, at the Allegheny County Free Fair. The farm speech will be made in Des Moines at 6:15 p. m., EDT, before the Amvets convention.

The President's schedule calls for him to leave Washington by plane at 10:10 a. m., EDT, arriving in Pittsburgh at 11 a. m., EDT. He will take off from Pittsburgh at 1 p. m., EDT, arriving in Des Moines at 4 p. m., EDT.

After the Des Moines speech, he will fly to the Fairfax (Kans.) Army Air Base, then drive to the summer White House at Independence, Mo., where he will spend the night.

Tuesday morning, he will visit his brother, Vivian, at Grandview, Mo., and leave there at 1 p. m., EDT, for Washington, arriving at 5 p. m., EDT.

Amvets Vote Against AVC Merger Plan

Des Moines, Sept. 4 (AP).—The Amvet national convention today killed off a move to consolidate with AVC by an almost unanimous standing vote after two hours of vigorous debate.

To finish off the matter, the American Veterans of World War II instructed their national executive committee not to negotiate on such matters with the American Veterans Committee during the next year.

The Amvets adopted a resolution, 193 to 152, asking a bonus up to $4500, after an even more vigorous debate than over the AVC merger.

Leading the move favoring a bonus was Joe Gelman of Pittsburgh, whose chief opponent was John Hundley of Charlottesville, Va.

The resolution asked payment at the rate of $3 a day for domestic duty of more than two months, and $4 a day for foreign duty, up to the $4500 maximum.

Gelman said such a payment would not be a bonus, but adjusted compensation.

The bonus question came up after Veterans' Administrator Carl R. Gray of Washington told the Amvets they might consider the Nation's debt to veterans repaid by pensions, insurance, home loan guarantees and educational benefits.

The 600 delegates were looking forward next to an address by President Truman Monday

Taft Starts 1950 Senate Election Bid

Cleveland, Sept. 4 (U.P.).—Senator Robert A. Taft (R., Ohio) today began a 100-day tour of his home State in a bid for reelection with a stinging attack on communism and the Yalta agreement which "divided the world into two sections."

Taft told the Polish Legion of American Veterans here that "as a result of Yalta, the world is divided into sections, one free, the other directed by Russia through the Communist Party."

The veteran Republican, campaigning for a third consecutive Senate term, added that "such a condition may well lead to a third World War, although I am inclined to think that it will not do so."

Taft, whom organized labor has promised to go all-out to defeat, told the veterans that "great headway was made by the Communists within our Government itself. Recent revelations made it clear that there were Soviet agents with access to important Government information."

"A number of departments were full of men who accepted Henry Wallace's thesis that communism was just another form of democracy, and perhaps a little better than we enjoyed in the United States," he said.

Taft did not think there would be a war because the Russians are "realists and they know that they would lose in the end. I believe they are relying on the spread of communism by propaganda and intrigue, as it has been spread in the past."

British Unions Meet Today On Pay Crisis

Bridlington, England, Sept. 4 (NYHT).—Britain's annual conference which speaks for eight million organized workers will open here Monday on a note of crisis and revolt.

This eighty-first conference of the Trades Union Congress has already been warned by the general council of the TUC that economically speaking the working man of Britain faces 12 months of further sacrifice and must accept the Labor government's hold-the-wage-line policy.

Despite this warning, some trades unions are prepared to battle at the conference against the wage freeze policy. The Electrical Trades Union, for example, will press its resolution before the conference. This states that the ETU "cannot support the policy designed to stabilize wages at their present level."

Undoubtedly the ETU and its left-wing leadership will not win the day. But its challenge may leave serious scars in the TUC, which stanchly upholds the Labor government.

Prime Minister Attlee will appear before the conference on Wednesday. It will be his task to make sure the honeymoon continues. The crucial debate on wages and prices is scheduled to begin on Thursday.

Bolivia Rebel Forces Lose Two Cities

La Paz, Bolivia, Sept. 4 (U.P.).—Government forces captured Sucre and Potosi, two of the five cities still held by rebel forces, in savage fighting today, and it was believed the revolt was starting to crumble.

A communique issued at 2 p. m. announced the fall of Sucre, the official capital of this country, after a determined defense by the rebels who were fortified in both government and private buildings.

Three hours later a second communique announced the capture of Potosi by loyal troops and university students.

The rebels still hold Santa Cruz, Villamontes and Yacuiba. But strong forces are now in position to attack all three towns.

The loss of Sucre and Potosi was a heavy blow to the rebel forces, which are made up of both extreme rightists nd leftists, in their bid to unseat the middle-of-the-road government of acting President Mamerto Urriolagoitia.

Scholar-DP To Begin Over In U. S. at 73

New York, Sept. 4 (U.P.).—Dr. Mich el Novikov, 73, onetime dean of the University of Moscow, arrived here today with six members of his family to begin life anew as hired hands on a New Jersey farm.

Novikov, former member of the prerevolutionary Russian Parliament and a political refugee for 27 years, arrived aboard the Army transport Gen. M. B. Stewart with his family and 809 other displaced persons.

"Now I feel that I am back in my own atmosphere," Novikov said, explaining he was a member of the Democratic Party in the Russian Parliament during the rule of Czar Nicholas II.

The family group, which spans four generations, was sponsored by Prof. Novikov's cousin, Bishop Ivanov Seraphim, of the Holy Trinity Monastery in Jordansville, N. Y. They will be resettled on the farm of Dr. Alex Erickson near Vernon, N. J.

Dr. Novikov, who was expelled from Russia in 1922 with 70 other professors because the Communists considered them "undesirable intelligentsia," said he hoped his native land eventually would become a "normal country."

"But I am too old to hope to see the new Russia," he said.

Czech Prelate Smuggles Out Sermon Against Communists

Prague, Czechoslovakia, Sept. 4 (U.P.).—Catholic Archbishop Josef Beran declared in a sermon smuggled from his palace today that he not a traitor to Czechoslovakia, and predicted the eventual victory of the church over communism.

"Only he who betrays God betrays his people and nation," the Archbishop said in a sermon read by priests in at least three Prague churches.

"In our inflamed and corroded times St. Mary and Her Immaculate Heart will bring peace and calm to the whole world.

Sees "Raving Satinism"

"We are so small and powerless in the midst of raving Satanism, but by our very lack of power we can contribute more to pacify the offended majesty (of God) and to avert all evils from our nation."

It was the first sermon by the Archbishop, leading Czechoslovak Catholic churchman, since he was howled down by Communists in St. Vitus Cathedral in June.

The archbishop remained in his Communist-guarded palace nearby. His sermon was written in observance of the feast of the Nativity of the Virgin Mary next Thursday.

Mimeographed on cheap paper, it was smuggled out of the palace and distributed to priests—how many was not learned—to be read today as a call for Catholics to exert their strength in resisting the attacks of Communists on the church.

The sermon was read in St. Vitus' cathedral and in at least two other leading Prague Catholic churches.

Its text was the message of St. Paul to the oppressed Christian Corinthians that God chose the simpletons to shame the wise and, in the opinion of the world, to shame the strong.

On the newsstands were newspapers containing the latest attacks by Communists on the Church, including an editorial in the Communist organ Rude Pravo saying that the state would crush any efforts to stop its march toward communism.

In front of the cathedral, an elite corps of Communist troops guarded the presidential palace.

Nationalized Specs Are Cheap But They're 8 Months Coming

By Edwin S. Rosenthal

London, Sept. 4 (U.P.).—The world, capitalist or Socialist, looked much clearer to this correspondent today, thanks to a pair of nationalized spectacles.

They cost 30 cents (1 shilling 6 pence).

That's the price of the special de luxe numbers offered by Health Minister Aneurin Bevan under his national health scheme.

A slightly less fancy pair would have been free.

More than three million Britons are getting free glasses, or the 30-cent variety. Some three million more, according to the latest statistics, also want a better look at things.

Yankee Dollar Refused

I felt like a capitalist moocher on British economy until I ran up against an efficient, blond receptionist, who might, or might not, have been a Socialist.

"Of course, Americans are entitled to the service," she said in an almost school-marmish manner. "Every resident here is."

Unconvinced, I offered to pay. After all, I was trained in the American creed you never get anything for nothing.

The blonde shrugged. "It is quite foolish to pay if your doctor recommends them," she said. "Unless you want a special, rimless pair."

I suggested the service might be faster if I paid.

"We are not permitted by law to give faster service to paying clients," she said icily.

Checkup Not Necessary

My physician recommended glasses without even checking my eyes. But the nationalized optometrist gave me a thorough test lasting 43 minutes.

Then, I guess I looked the gift horse in the mouth, although I didn't realize it at the time.

"When will I get these glasses?" I asked.

The optometrist murmured something about "as soon as possible . . . so many orders . . . do our best," and checked out for a quick cup of tea.

That was a few days before Christmas. The glasses came today.

British Take Biggest Plane On Trial Trip

Bristol, England, Sept. 4 (AP).—The Brabazon, world's largest civil land plane, thundered into the air for a successful 27-minute first flight today.

Tens of thousands of excited spectators cheered as the 130-ton sky monster roared aloft from its ranch-sized runway.

The eight-engined silver giant, capable of carrying 120 passengers nonstop between London and New York, circled gracefully over this city before she nestled back smoothly on her big field.

The pilot, former RAF Flyer Bill Pegg, said the Brabazon took off within 500 yards at 85 miles an hour.

Cruises at 140 Knots

"We were cruising most of the time at about 140 knots (roughly 160 mph) and we reached an altitude of between 3500 and 4000 feet," he said.

A spokesman of the Bristol Aeroplane Co., which built the plane for the government-owned British Overseas Airways Co., said the initial flight was entirely satisfactory.

The Brabazon has a wing span of 230 feet and a length of 177 feet. Maximum speed 300 miles an hour.

The big ship will not go into commercial service but will be used as an experimental prototype for the construction of a Brabazon II.

Begun in 1945

The Brabazon, begun in 1945, cost £12,000,000 ($48,000,000).

The target date for Brabazon II is 1951. She will have gas turbine engines and will be designed to give sleeper service to 100 passenger on the Atlantic run or to carry up to 200 persons on a shorter hop.

The largest land transport now in regular use in the United States Navy's 184,000-pound Lockheed Constitution, which has carried 72 passengers and a crew of 18.

The world's largest plane, Howard Hughes' 200-ton flying boat, remains in drydock in Los Angeles Harbor waiting for a new set of propellers for its eight engines. It has not been flown since Hughes took it up for a brief flight two years ago.

Wallgren to Return Here Within Month

Bellingham, Wash., Sept. 3 (AP).—Whether Washington State's former Governor and Senator Mon C. Wallgren returns to public life "depends on what the President wishes."

Wallgren, crony of President Truman, stopped here tonight while returning from a five-day cruise in Canadian waters. He said in an interview that he expects to return to Washington, D. C., within a month.

There were no reports of damage to the important island military base. The Air Force typhoon warning network said Lise is expested to pass well east of Japan.

Home Sales Rise Reported Across Nation

By The Associated Press

A Nation-wide upturn in home sales within the last 30 to 60 days was reported yesterday by the National Association of Real Estate Boards.

The association, in a survey of local boards in 22 cities, got reports of "slight" to "decided" increases from all but three.

The upswing was attributed by the realty organization to a "return of confidence on the part of prospective buyers and the realization that prices are not going to break sharply."

"Families who had been holding up to see what would happen, consequently have been reentering the market," the report said.

Two large Detroit brokers reported a trebling of activity.

On the other hand, most cities reported "no appreciable change" in the turnover of business and industrial property, including stores, office buildings, factories and warehouses.

Churchmen Appeal For Labor Good Will

By Martha J. Hall
Post Reporter

Free enterprise will be successful only when all parties concerned are willing to sit down together and face facts in a spirit of justice and good will, a Methodist minister said yesterday in a Labor Day sermon.

The Rev. Dr. Fred C. Reynolds, superintendent of the Washington East District of the Methodist Church, preached at Mount Vernon Place Methodist Church, 900 Massachusetts ave. nw.

"Our generation is tormented by an endless succession of economic problems," Dr. Reynolds said, adding "the higher the level of civilization attained, the more complicated and complex life becomes, and the higher degree of intelligence and character required."

Calls for Intelligence

Complicated problems of wages, profits, prices "cannot be answered arbitrarily by each one fighting for all he can get without relation to the others," he continued.

If we do not have the "intelligence and character" to face the facts in a spirit of good will and justice, "then free enterprise fails and some autocratic power in the form of government or a dictator must compel us to submit to its decrees," Dr. Reynolds declared.

The church, he said, "warns all groups against the ruinous practice of seeking the maximum for themselves regardless of a fair share for others."

Church Urged to Set Example

At Luther Place Memorial Church, Thomas Circle, the Rev. Donald Bautz, director of the Lutheran Inner Mission Society in Washington, urged the church to set a good example in its own affairs, its use of labor, pay for services and its investments, "lest it prove subversive to the principles it proclaims."

Pastor Bautz declared that "the ultimate solution of all human conflict is not in the realm of law but in the spiritual sphere of love."

"Not legalism, but the grace of God, not contracts ultimately, but Christ's spirit of brotherhood and service in the hearts of men are the true source of blessed relationships in all affairs," the clergyman said.

The church, he continued, must proclaim that "the only cure for human selfishness and greed, which are the common sources of industrial controversy, is the Christian spirit of sacrifice for the greater good, growing out of love for God who desires men to live in a spirit of unselfish brotherhood."

To Meet Ching

Negotiators Quit Hawaii For New York

Honolulu, Sept. 4 (AP).—Chief negotiators for the striking Hawaiian stevedores and employers left aboard separate planes today for conferences scheduled to open in New York September 7.

They are to meet with Cyrus Ching, director of the Federal Labor Mediation Service, in a new effort to settle the 127-day-old strike which has paralyzed this Territory's commerce.

W. Russell Starr, employers' committee chairman, said, "we are going to New York with the sincere hope that we can end the strike with Mr. Ching's assistance."

He said the committee was fully authorized to make a settlement "fair not only to our employes but fair in relation to other wages paid in Hawaii."

Harry Bridges, president of the striking CIO International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union, declined to make any comment because "we don't know what Ching will propose."

The strike began May 1 to enforce a demand for a 32-cent raise in stevedore wages of $1.40 an hour. The union since has said it would settle for 26 cents or less, but the highest employer offer, now withdrawn, was 14 cents. Repeated efforts at direct negotiation have failed.

Rudy Vallee Saves His Fourth Bride As Veil Blazes

Oakland, Calif., Sept. 4 (AP).—Rudy Vallee took his fourth wife last night and minutes after the ceremony saved her from possible serious injury by fire.

Following the marriage of the 48-year-old band leader and Eleanor Kathleen Norris, 21, the wedding party went to the Orinda Country Club for the reception.

Guests gasped in alarm as the bride's veil brushed against a candle and caught fire. The flimsey net flared up. Rudy quickly caught the flaming veil and crushed it between his hands, putting out the fire.

A 5-foot hole was burned in the veil. Mrs. Vallee's hair was singed. So was Rudy's but his hands were not injured.

Tears came to the bride's eyes but she brushed them away and turned to greet her guests.

3 Men Convicted Of Raping Girl, 17, In Florida Town

Tavares, Fla., Sept. 4 (AP).—Three Negroes were convicted last night of a rape that ignited race demonstrations by white mobs in this central Florida area last July.

An all-white Circuit Court jury found the three guilty of raping a 17-year-old white farmwife, but recommended mercy for Charles Greenlee, 16, one of the three charged.

Death sentence is mandatory for the other two, Samuel Shepherd and Walter Irvin, both 22. Greenlee will be sentenced to life imprisonment or less by Judge Truman G. Futch.

A fourth suspect, Ernest Thomas, was killed by a posse in northwest Florida several weeks ago.

Marquess Church Guest Princess Margaret

Balmoral, Scotland, Sept. 4 (AP). The Marquess of Blandford, often a dancing partner for Princess Margaret, went to church in her party today.

He and the princess and King George and Queen Elizabeth were at the morning service at Crathie Church of the Church of Scotland, near here.

They went over from Balmoral Castle, where the royal family is on vacation and the marquess is a guest.

Our Free Press Only a Mirage, Czech Declares

Budapest, Hungary, Sept. 4 (AP). Jiri Hronek, secretary-general of the International Association of Journalists, charged in a speech last night that freedom of the press in Western nations really is "the freedom of lying."

Hronek, a Czech, told the second congress of the World Federation of Democratic Youth that the Associated Press, the United Press and the International News Service "hold the monopoly on news in America and aim to extend this monopoly also to Europe."

"While the press, film and radio are in the possession of the people in the Soviet Union and the other people's democracies," Hronek said, "they are controlled by the capitalists in the West."

Lane Brings Happiness to Boy Who Likes to Look at Notables

The Governor and Jimmie.

Jimmie and the Governor are sort of pals now, all because of a little incident down on St. Helena's Island the other day.

A "welfare" boy, 11-year-old Jimmie first aroused the interest of Gene Raney of Kensington, Md., owner of historic St. Helena's Island in the Severn River near Herald Harbor. Raney took the lad to live on the island for the summer.

Jimmie, it seems, loves seeing the members of Congress, judges and other prominent folk down there by the Island Club's cuisine, but his excitement reached a peak when he heard that Gov. W. Preston Lane, jr., was coming to a party given by Raney.

Came the day and Jimmie waited on the wharf for hours to greet the Governor. But when he learned that the Governor had arrived earlier in the yacht of Judge Stedman Prescott of Rockville and Jimmie had missed him, Jimmie was bitterly disappointed. Manfully, he tried to hide his disappointment, but the tears were hard to choke back.

As for the dinner, it was a big success. There the Governor was surrounded by political and business leaders of the State. It was scarcely the time to think of a small boy, but someone mentioned Jimmie's unhappiness to the Governor.

The Governor immediately asked for Jimmie, and when Jimmie came, the Governor said, "It's fellows like you I am trying to leave a real Maryland to."

"And when you are in Annapolis come and see me. Just tell the doorman you are Jimmie from St. Helena's Island and he will let you in."

District Newspaper Printers Ask for Pay Scale Increase

Washington newspaper printers yesterday voted to ask the four daily newspapers for increases in wages of $9 a week for the day and third shifts and $14 for the night shift.

A reduction in the third (lobster) shift work week from 35 to 30 hours also was asked.

The wage scale and hour requests, together with other provisions, were the same as those made a year ago by the union, Columbia Typographical Union No. 101 (AFL).

They were voted as a counterproposal to a recent request for an unspecified reduction in wages by the Washington Publishers Association.

Unanimous Vote Announced

The vote, which was announced as unanimous, was taken at a special meeting of the local at Pythian Temple. The union represents about 650 printers.

Wages asked were $100 for 35 hours a week on the day shift; $110 for 35 hours on the night shift, and $110 for 30 hours on the lobster shift.

Scales in the present agreement, which expires November 11, are $91, $96 and $101, respectively, for 35 hours in each case. These represented across-the-board increases of $6 a week from the previous scale.

Double Overtime Pay

The union's counterproposal, which was approved by International Typographical Union President Woodruff Randolph, also proposes:

Double pay for overtime, as compared with the present time and a half.

Three weeks' vacation after one year of employment, against two weeks after one year and three weeks after five years, under the present agreement.

Sick leave up to 15 days a year; none is provided at present.

Severance pay, not now provided, would amount to a minimum of two weeks' pay, with one week's pay additional for each six months of employment, up to four weeks' pay.

A pension plan to be worked out with the publishers.

In addition to pay reduction, the publishers had asked elimination of setting duplicatory type for advertisements and changes in shift hour provisions, apprentice ratios, foremen and hiring.

Publishers and printers have been operating under a working conditions agreement rather than a written contract for the past two years, since the Taft-Hartley Act outlawed the closed shop. The local agreement usually is followed by management and printers of Labor, Railroad Brotherhoods weekly, and the National Tribune, veterans' publication.

He was recently conferred a citation of merit by Gen. Frank L. Hawley for his service in Berlin under the State Department during the Soviet blockade of 1948-49.

Suicide Ruling In River Death

A certificate of suicide in the drowning of Miss Bessie V. Stricker, 72, 26 Boyd ave., Takoma Park, Md., was issued yesterday by Dr. F. J. Broschart, Montgomery County medical examiner.

The body of Miss Stricker, retired Coast Guard employe, was found Friday night floating in the Potomac River near Great Falls.

Dr. Broschart said Miss Striker had left a note in her apartment indicating that she intended to commit suicide. Funeral arrangements were still incomplete last night. The body was removed to the Robert Pumphrey funeral home in Bethesda.

Ways to Deal With Germans Puzzle Israel

By Ruth Gruber

Tel Aviv, Sept. 4 (NYHT).—The immigration and trade ministries of the Israeli government are now faced with the problem of how to deal with Germany and the Germans.

Applications by Germans for permission to visit Israel, or to immigrate here on the basis of their having just married Jews, are being carefully screened by government authorities.

Public opinion has been aroused by the problem. There are debates on whether Israel should enter any negotiations with the country and people responsible for the death of 6 million Jews. Nearly every person here has lost someone in the Nazi gas chambers, and the throught of meeting Germans in friendly relations is deeply distasteful to the man on the street.

The Liberal newspaper Haarez, in a lead editorial, suggested that no Israeli citizens be given exit permits to go to Germany except on displaced persons business, and recommended that a bill be introduced in the Knesset (Parliament) fixing the exact terms of relations with Germany and the German people. "The world must know," Haarez said, "that the Jewish people cannot forget what the Germans did."

Reports that various firms have been dealing with Germany for the purchase of machinery have been denied by the firms who consider this a libel.

Seven-State Vice Ring Broken Up

Ogden, Utah, Sept. 4 (U.P.).—A seven-State vice ring that lured 'teen-age girls was broken up last night with the arrest of seven persons, the FBI and local police reported today.

A Marine, five other men and a woman were arrested on charges of pandering, but were released after posting bond. The Marine is being held by Naval authorities at the Naval Supply Depot at Clearfield. His name was withheld.

Chief of Police M. J. Schoof said the break came after the pick up of a 17-year-old girl and the receipt of an anonymous letter giving the gang's set up. The 'teen-age Utah girl told officers how she had been forced to join the ring and was put to work in a hotel.

The girl described how she had been lured into vice by the Marine and then had been taught "how to entertain men." She said this included how to look at a man and give him the "come on" glance.

The girl said she had been put to work in Ogden for a while and then was sent to a hotel in Idaho Falls, Idaho. She told officers that she escaped from that hotel and made her way back to Salt Lake City and then returned to Ogden. She had in her possession a list of addresses in seven Western States where she had been instructed to go if she was forced to leave any one of the places.

The six persons released after posting bail were Bud Hazlip, 22; David Estrada, 32; Danny Predovich, 32; Marvin Roemer, 49; Samuel W. Fertiz, 37, and Jewell Green, 21. All gave their addresses as Ogden and posted $1500 bail except for Hazlip, whose bail was set at $1000.

New York, Sept. 4 (AP).—A Lutheran leader said today Berlin observers expect a flare-up of action against the Roman Catholic Church in the Soviet sections of Germany.

The Rev. Walter C. Daib, pastor of the Lutheran Synod of Missouri, Ohio and other States, made the statement as he returned from a tour of Europe for the church's Board of Missions.

Something Is Fishy In Red Paradise

Berlin, Sept. 4 (AP).—The Russian-controlled "ration-free" chain stores in Berlin have published an official apology for their fish.

"The herring were cured in an amateurish manner."

Bulgars Disarm Greeks

Hodcarriers' Union in Fight

674 with strike-breaking, that is, supplying workers to contractors struck by Local 74. Local 674 countered it was simply carrying out its own contractual obligations with the builders.

Local 74 settled its strike, as the carpenters did, for a 10-cent wage hike, $1.45 an hour.

Carry 'Universal Card'

Without striking, Local 674 signed a new contract for a 5-cent-an-hour raise to $1.40 an hour.

Members of the seven hodcarriers' unions here carry what is known as a "universal card." Although they belong to autonomous locals, each with its own jurisdiction—such as ditch-diggers, heavy construction, plasterer tenders, and so forth—a member of any one local is permitted to work on a project under the jurisdiction of any other local.

Thus, since the end of the strike, there's been much confusion over the difference in pay between the members of Local 74 and Local 674.

On jobs at which the builder has a contract with Local 674, the laborers—no matter which local they belong to—get $1.40 an hour; on jobs under contract with Local 74, all the laborers get $1.45 an hour.

Contention between the two locals has been sharpest on the apartment projects. Local 674 says all residential building, including apartments, fall into its jurisdiction. Local 74 insists apartment building falls into its own sphere of commercial construction.

Left-wing Local 74 now has challenged the jurisdiction of Local 674 in the apartment-house field, specificially over eight-apartment projects in the District and nearby Maryland and Virginia, and has placed the issue in the hands of the Hodcarriers International.

Threats Charged

Meanwhile, the two locals have been accusing each other of illegal membership raids. Robert Wearring, president of the smaller, right-wing Local 674, has charged the left wing Local 74 is seeking to "swallow up" his local. He alleges he has been threatened, anonymously, with violence if he continues to put up a fight.

Left-wingers won control of Local 74 several years ago, in the wake of the Larry Kelly scandal involving embezzlement of $100,000 in union funds.

Kelly, who headed the union, disappeared and is reported to have died at sea. Four other union officials and a real estate man were found guilty of conspiring to rob the union treasury in 1941-2.

Collisson Gets Post In Germany

Frankfurt, Germany, Sept. 4 (AP).—Norman H. Collisson, chief of the Economic Cooperation Administration mission to West Germany, tonight was named economic chief in the United States State Department's high commission, which starts running the United States Zone September 15.

The announcement was made by High Commissioner John J. MCloy.

MCloy announced other appointments and revealed that Maj. Gen. George P. Hays, deputy military governor, is staying in Germany "for an indefinite period."

Collisson will keep his job as ECA mission chief.

Other appointments announced by McCloy were: Shepard Morgan of Rochester, N. Y., to be director of the finance division. Morgan previously was a finance adviser to Gen. Lucius D. Clay.

James W. Riddleberger, political affairs director on McCloy's cabinet, to be United States member on the tripartite political committee.

Chester A. McLain, McCloy's general counsel, to be United States member of the tripartite law committee.

Guy J. Swope of Harrisburg, Pa., to be attached to the staff of the office of military government in Bavaria.

Paris, Sept. 4 (NYHT).—France "possesses this time incontestable trumps to win the decisive game" of incorporating a peaceful, cooperative Germany into the western European community, a government spokesman said today.

Paul Devinat said the "trumps" were these: "Germany is no longer armed; Germany has lost her power; Germany, herself, and millions of refugees depend for livelihood on international aid."

The speaker, who is Premier Queuille's liaison secretary with Parliament, displayed a much more liberal attitude toward Germany than did Minister of Interior Jules Moch last week.

The minister, a Socialist, then said the majority of Germans had not shown sufficient repentance to warrant their admission to the Council of Europe.

The government secretary agreed with Moch that France could not forget her wounds without guarantees that Germans had undergone a profound change of heart and mind.

"We have the means of taking the necessary precautions," he said. "If it is possible, in agreement with our allies, to find in an established Europe now beginning to rally, a solution to the crippling problem of our relations with Germany, let's not miss the hour of destiny."

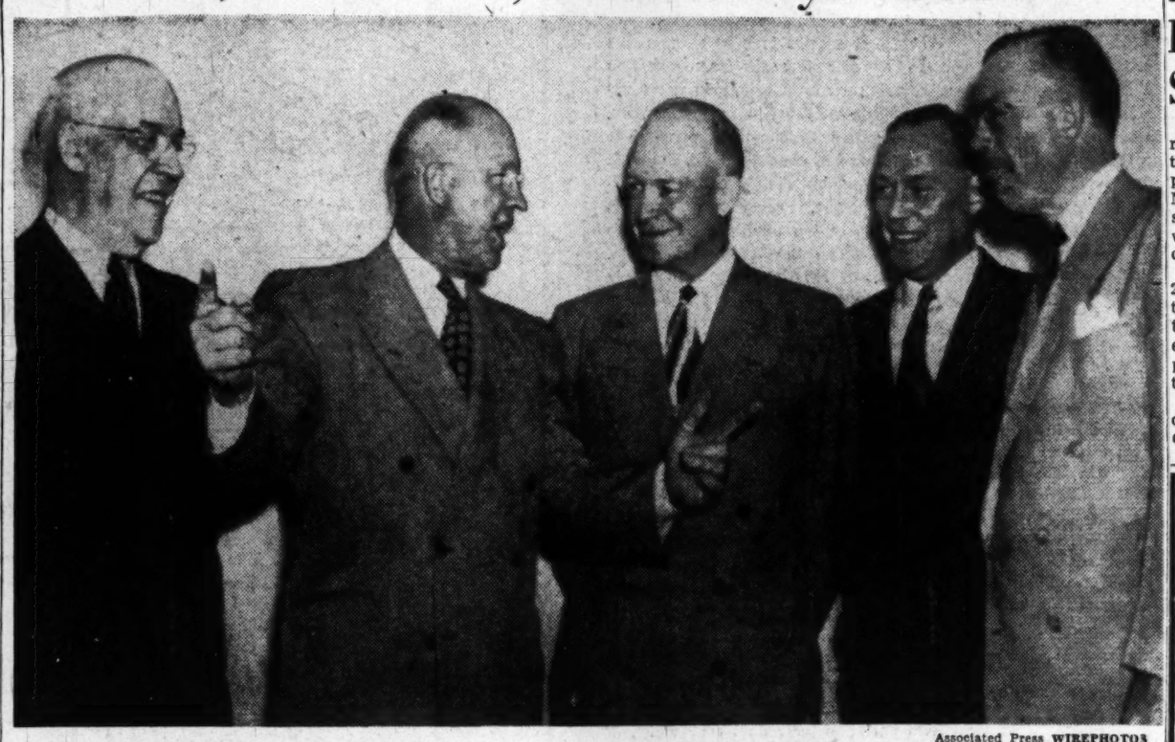
5 Eisenhower Brothers Hold Their First Reunion in Years At St. Louis; 'It's Like a Zoo,' Is Comment by the General



Associated Press WIREPHOTOS

EISENHOWER BROTHERS MEET AGAIN—The first get-together in three years of the famous five Eisenhower brothers was held Saturday in St. Louis. They are (left to right) Arthur B. of Kansas City; Edgar N. of Tacoma, Wash.; Gen. Dwight D. of New York City; Earl D. of Charleroi, Pa., and Milton, president of the Kansas State College. All plan to attend the opening session of the American Bar Association convention today

St. Louis, Sept. 4 (U.P.).—The five Eisenhower brothers met here today for their first real reunion in years and Gen. Dwight D. remarked that it's "like a zoo to be with the Eisenhower tribe."

The brothers used the convention of the American Bar Association as a rallying point for their first meeting since they went fishing together in Wisconsin in 1946.

General Eisenhower will address the opening session of the convention Monday.

The Eisenhowers gathered when Dwight became head of Columbia University last October, but the brothers said that was only a brief meeting.

The general flew here yesterday with Milton F., president of Kansas State College. Edgar N. came from Tacoma, Wash., where he is an attorney; Arthur B. from Kansas City, where he is executive-vice president of the Commerce Trust Co., and Earl E. from Charleroi, Pa., where he is an electrical engineer and radio station owner.

Right off, the brothers got into a friendly argument over what month it was in 1946 that they went fishing.

Edgar thought it was June, while Ike picked July and bet $5 that he was right.

Indonesia Parley Near Showdown

The Hague, Sept. 4 (AP).—The round table conference on the future of Indonesia's 70 million people will reach a decisive stage Monday. The Dutch and Indonesians have come to the point where they must lay out their cards.

Since they first met August 23, the conferees have been cautiously feeling each other out on the conditions for granting sovereignty to the East Indies people the Dutch have ruled more than three centuries.

The U. N. Commission for Indonesia, which got the Dutch-Indonesian fighting stopped, has been standing by if needed at the conference table.

This week an intensive series of committee sessions will start in a flurry of working papers and draft plans.

ECA Gets Tough

The ECA intends to put increased pressure on western European countries to make more efficient use of dollar aid by making the amount of each country's dollar allotment dependent upon its performance. This system of rewards or punishments, as the case may be, will be introduced in the second half of the current fiscal year. Meanwhile participating countries have been warned that they must do their best to promote sound domestic recovery and cooperate among themselves and with other countries to reduce trade barriers. Otherwise they may be penalized by withdrawal of a portion of the dollar sum allocated to them.

Heretofore the ECA has relied chiefly on friendly advice and persuasion to bring about needed reforms, fearing that attachment of many conditions to the receipt of aid would give color to charges that the recovery program was being used by the United States as a cover for attempts to mold the domestic and foreign policies of European governments. It became apparent some time ago, however, that the policy of giving without exacting adequate performance on the part of the beneficiaries had been carried too far. American taxpayers cannot be expected to continue to donate billions of dollars to assist European recovery and restoration of a soundly based world trade, unless the results justify the sacrifices exacted of them. The ECA is, therefore, acting in the interest of Europeans themselves by adopting a tougher attitude and insisting on production of evidence that the aided countries are making determined efforts, individually and collectively, to correct conditions that prevent attainment of the goals of the recovery program.

It is difficult, to be sure, to draw a line between legitimate pressure in the form of dollar rewards designed to hasten economic reforms and unwarranted meddling in the domestic affairs of foreign countries. The ECA will have to watch its step to avoid antagonizing the representatives of other governments and possibly hampering the conduct of American foreign affairs. With these reservations, we conclude that the ECA's new policy is not only justified but should have been adopted a good many months ago when the recovery program began to bog down because of delay in the introduction of imperative and long overdue reforms.

merely add to the expense, however, by stopping works now and resuming them later. Seasonal factors in Alaska are such that unless Congress acts shortly, it will be the spring of 1951 before any new work can start. It has been difficult enough to get the armed services to take a proper interest in the strategic significance of this northern Territory—witness, for instance, the wartime tendency of the Navy to forsake Alaska for the more salubrious clime of San Diego. To go all out for military aid to Europe while neglecting an American Territory of vital importance in the air age does not make sense from any standpoint.

Labor Day

As labor celebrates its annual holiday today, there is a great deal of emphasis on its demands and aspirations. Labor is still far from being satisfied with the vastly improved status that it occupies in the American economic system. Secretary of Labor Tobin wishes to see more workers under the Wage-Hour Act, improvement of the old-age insurance system and enactment of a better labor-management relations law. CIO President Murray lays emphasis upon further wage increases, pensions and health and welfare plans. George Meany of the AFL urges more worker participation in politics, and Frieda S. Miller, director of the Women's Bureau of the Labor Department, has spoken out for equal pay for women. It is a healthy sign that these and many other spokesmen for labor are neither complacent nor discouraged. They recognize that much progress has been made in lifting the workers' standard of living, and at the same time they insist in moving forward.

Along with labor's strong demands, however, there seems to go a more realistic attitude than was evident a year ago. An increasing number of wage earners realize that the merry-go-round of higher wages, higher production costs and higher prices does not give them a higher standard of living. There seems to be a keener awareness of the cost of strikes in terms of lost wages. We surmise, too, that many workers today have a better appreciation of the fact that any basic improvement in their living standards must come from an increase of their own output. In spite of their dislike for it, a great many unions have accepted the Taft-Hartley Act and are abiding by its terms. Intangible though they are, these trends of thinking among wage earners are likely to be an important factor in labor-management relations during the years ahead.

Employers for their part have generally accepted collective bargaining as an established institution. Probably they are more keenly aware than ever before of the necessity of maintaining high standards of living for the sake of providing markets for their products. Management and labor are still confronted by differences and problems too numerous to mention, but there are many indications on this Labor Day that the gulf between them is being narrowed. Certainly the facilities for enabling them to work together have been greatly improved. Of course, the conflict between them can never be resolved, but if mutual understanding and tolerance continue to grow it may be possible to adjust their differences in the years ahead with far less wear and tear upon our economic system than the country has witnessed in recent years.

The Bedfellow

Comrade Tito, whose fighter pilots only four years ago were shooting down American planes, has applied to the Export-Import Bank for a loan of 25 million dollars to purchase mining machinery. The strong probability is that he will get it; at any rate, the Administration is reported to be considering favorably his request. Such a loan would be a shrewd move on Tito's part. It would be a tangible demonstration to the world that he is not entirely dependent upon the Soviet Union for economic support. It would be a boon to the Yugoslav economy, which is in a bad way. It would be a boost to Tito's prestige among the satellite countries. It would be a blow to the Cominform. It would be a slap in the face to Moscow. It would be a gesture of friendship toward Tito by the United States, which would be interpreted as such by parties beyond the Iron Curtain which are now said to be covertly sympathetic to him, for in that case the result must be a world-wide schism in the Communist Party.

President Roosevelt is reported to have said in another but similar connection that in going across a bridge in the darkness—a very good description, incidentally, of our relations with Tito—it is permissible to take the hand of even the devil, should it be offered. The applicability of the proverb to the present case, it seems to us, depends upon how easily the devil's hand can be relinquished when the bridge is crossed. There are many recent examples to testify that policy based on expediency has led to serious troubles which might have been wholly avoided by a policy based on principles. The early Allied policy in North Africa is one example; the diplomacy of Tehran and Yalta affords another.

This is not to say that Tito should be refused the assistance he asks. It should be, however, on a strictly give-and-take basis, and this, we understand, is the position taken by the Administration, the return consideration to be in the form of strategic materials for our stockpiles. But we should never allow ourselves to forget the kind of man we are dealing with. Nor should we overlook the possibility that Tito and Stalin, who are both much better than we at the game of expedients, might suddenly come to an agreement to postpone their duel over which of them is to be master of the international working class until after the bourgeois forces have been defeated. After all, there is the precedent of the Molotov-Ribbentrop pact.

The probability is that the breach between Belgrade and the Kremlin has gone too far to be repaired even temporarily. Thus the loan is doubtless what the Export-Import Bank, under the present synthesis of politics and finance, might consider a tolerable risk.

Junkets By Air

Defense Secretary Johnson's attempt to save money by denying the use of military aircraft to Senators planning an around-the-world inspection tour has backfired. For Senator Thomas of Oklahoma, who will head the touring group, has ordered the Secretary of Defense to give a detailed accounting of the free flights made by himself, the President, the Vice President and other high officials. He also requests a list of guest passengers on such flights, together with estimates of cost as well as the names of military and civilian personnel who have aircraft assigned for their use. All that is lacking in this comprehensive schedule to complete the picture of what it currently costs the military establishment to supply free transportation is a statement of the number and cost of flights made by members of Congress.

We hope Secretary Johnson will provide that data along with the other requested information and that it will result in a congressional investigation of the uses to which military aircraft is now being put, with special emphasis upon flights by public officials for their own pleasure and convenience. Some of the recent jaunts of Vice President Barkley certainly appear to fall in the category of pleasure trips at Government expense. And a good many of the airplane journeyings of members of Congress undoubtedly cost more than they are worth, although these trips are sometimes highly instructive and are valuable aids to a better understanding of legislative problems.

In the present instance Secretary Johnson raises two sound objections to civilian use of military aircraft: It is more expensive than commercial airline carriage, and the services do not have aircraft to spare for trips of this kind. But, as Senator Thomas points out, there are equally good

Labor Day Thoughts

IF ANYONE WANTS to think about serious subjects on Labor Day, a pretty good subject is labor's new politics before all is said and done.

Before long, American labor's political effectiveness will receive a preelection test. As everyone knows, the man the CIO, the AFL, the railway brotherhoods and all the independent unions most want to beat is Senator Robert A. Taft of Ohio. As fewer people realize, the man labor has chosen to defeat Taft is a likable progressive farm leader and chieftain of the American cooperative movement, Murray D. Lincoln, who has been the biggest influence in the Ohio Farm Bureau Federation for many years.

It has already been described in this space how the united political arms of the otherwise warring labor groups selected Lincoln as their candidate after carefully reviewing the whole field, and how they announced their choice to him in early July. More recently, the labor strategists have also enlisted the aid of the Administration in order to get Lincoln to run.

Democratic National Chairman William Boyle, who is wiser than some of his subordinates, promptly agreed to go along when asked to do so by Jack Kroll of the CIO, Joseph Keenan of the AFL, and C. T. Anderson of railway labor's political league. "Ohio is your baby," was the way Boyle put it. Kroll, Keenan and Anderson asked Boyle to get the help of President Truman, and by Boyle's request, the President telephoned Murray Lincoln and asked him to make the senatorial fight.

THE PRESIDENT'S telephone call followed other, similarly inspired requests by Administration leaders, like Secretary of Agriculture Brannan. And the aforementioned test that will come in a few days will take the form of Murray Lincoln's final decision, to make the race against Taft, or to reject the opportunity that has been offered him.

Nothing could have been better planned, or more efficiently organized, than the campaign to make Lincoln a candidate. The fact that Lincoln still is hesitating hints at labor's chief political weakness. For Lincoln has been slow to throw his hat in the ring because he has not been sure of the support of the Ohio Democratic organization. And the divergence between the Democratic organizations and the political branches of the labor groups has been and is, a main cause of trouble for the labor strategists.

On the other hand, it is already very clear that the Democratic Party needs the labor groups more than the labor groups need the Democrats.

Such wise leaders as Jack Arvey in Chicago and Ed Flynn of New York have already acknowledged the fact. And this is not surprising, since the Republicans, with their Taft-Hartley Act, have accomplished a miracle that Franklin Delano Roosevelt longed for in vain. The Taft-Hartley Act has absolutely united the labor movement on the political level. It has also driven the labor movement to organize politically, for the first time in history, in a serious, professional manner.

The CIO-PAC under Jack Kroll, the AFL League for Political Education under Keenan, and the brotherhoods' league under Anderson are not only closely and effectively allied with one another. They are also working with all the independent unions except John L. Lewis' mine workers. Furthermore, their work is real. It gets down to the county and the precinct level. As it continues, it will inevitably become the dominant factor in the northern

"Steel Arguments"

I read with interest and considerable agreement your August 29 editorial concerning labor's change in attitude toward steel production.

I noted, however, an implication in what you said: that the "overbuilding" of steel was the result of mistakes by businessmen.

This is a very usual and very serious mistake and I should like to take the liberty of correcting it. Over-building of the capital goods industry is frequently a necessary and indispensable part of the process of growth. It could often occur in a Socialist state and frequently has nothing whatever to do with mistakes in forecasting.

An example may help. Suppose we want 100,000 houses. If we build them all at once, we shall have to have a construction industry able to turn out 100,000 houses a year; but it often happens that we don't want 100,000 houses a year, we only want to make up a backlog of 100,000 houses and after that we will only want, say, 10,000 additional houses each year.

In such a case the planners of a society as well as businessmen would be caught in an insoluble conflict between speed and stability. If we build enough houses for veterans in a hurry, we run the risk of an overexpansion and eventual collapse of the construction industry; but if we don't build the houses in a hurry, the veterans are left in the street. This problem is now bothering the English Socialist government quite as much as it bothers us.

Attacks On Britain

During the past few weeks it has been impossible to pick up a newspaper without reading of onslaughts against this country, its political leaders, and its workers. We are accustomed to a generous dose of abuse from the Continent. But now it seems we are being kicked downstairs by the peoples of America.

We appreciate and are desperately grateful for American help; let there be no doubt about that. But to say that Britain is living on American charity is nothing more or less than kindergarten economics of which any thinking adult should be ashamed. Hans Kindler

The untimely departure of the greatly esteemed Hans Kindler from the sphere of music leaves a gaping void at a time when his unique genius and unbounded capacity for his work were at their greatest ascendancy.

Dr. Kindler will be generally remembered as a patron of the arts, polished cosmopolite, man about town, genial host, and of course, the gifted artist of international repute. But concert audiences everywhere will recall him singularly for the large measure of personal warmth and infectious enthusiasm he infused into his music—attributes which he joyously passed on to eager listeners.

In Baltimore, his memory will be revered for the many delightful evenings of concertizing at the Lyric Theater where he conducted the splendid instrument of his own creation, the National Symphony.

Dr. Kindler's career is an inspired prelude to a revitalized era of opportunity and endeavor available to promising American artists and composers whose cause in music he so renlentlessly and valiantly championed.

ECA Gets Tough

The ECA intends to put increased pressure on western European countries to make more efficient use of dollar aid by making the amount of each country's dollar allotment dependent upon its performance. This system of rewards or punishments, as the case may be, will be introduced in the second half of the current fiscal year. Meanwhile participating countries have been warned that they must do their best to promote sound domestic recovery and cooperate among themselves and with other countries to reduce trade barriers. Otherwise they may be penalized by withdrawal of a portion of the dollar sum allocated to them.

Heretofore the ECA has relied chiefly on friendly advice and persuasion to bring about needed reforms, fearing that attachment of many conditions to the receipt of aid would give color to charges that the recovery program was being used by the United States as a cover for attempts to mold the domestic and foreign policies of European governments. It became apparent some time ago, however, that the policy of giving without exacting adequate performance on the part of the beneficiaries had been carried too far. American taxpayers cannot be expected to continue to donate billions of dollars to assist European recovery and restoration of a soundly based world trade, unless the results justify the sacrifices exacted of them. The ECA is, therefore, acting in the interest of Europeans themselves by adopting a tougher attitude and insisting on production of evidence that the aided countries are making determined efforts, individually and collectively, to correct conditions that prevent attainment of the goals of the recovery program.

It is difficult, to be sure, to draw a line between legitimate pressure in the form of dollar rewards designed to hasten economic reforms and unwarranted meddling in the domestic affairs of foreign countries. The ECA will have to watch its step to avoid antagonizing the representatives of other governments and possibly hampering the conduct of American foreign affairs. With these reservations, we conclude that the ECA's new policy is not only justified but should have been adopted a good many months ago when the recovery program began to bog down because of delay in the introduction of imperative and long overdue reforms.

Alaska's Defense

One result of the visit to Alaska of the Joint Chiefs of Staff ought to be to focus attention on the neglected defenses of that vital outpost. Delegate E. L. Bartlett, in a letter published recently in this newspaper, called attention to the fact that Chairman Vinson of the House Armed Services Committee has decided not to push the military public works bill, which authorizes some 138 million dollars for military construction in Alaska. Inasmuch as this construction is directly related to the number of men that can be stationed in Alaska and the degree of defense obtainable there, Gov. Ernest Gruening did not understate the case when, in a telegram to members of Congress, he termed Alaska "America's Achilles heel."

Although the 614-million-dollar military public works bill is part of the President's budget, doubtless portions of it could safely be postponed in the interest of economy. But prudent trimming is different from complete neglect. More military housing, petroleum storage facilities, hospitals, warehouses and the like are critically needed in Alaska. Lack of housing for troops is a main reason why more men cannot be stationed there. Indeed, housing is an almost universal service need, and the lack of it is a definite morals factor, with military personnel living in tarpaper shacks, huts and worse.

Another consideration in Alaska is the implication contained in the expansion of military facilities in Alaska. For example, great airfields have been built, but there are insufficient troops to defend them. After their attack on Dutch Harbor in 1942, the Japanese could have captured Alaska relatively easily, but they would have found few facilities they could use against continental United States. The opposite is now true, and a semidefended Alaska is particularly vulnerable to attack across the Bering Strait.

It is undeniable that construction in Alaska is expensive. Congress would merely add to the expense, however, by stopping works now and resuming them later. Seasonal factors in Alaska are such that unless Congress acts shortly, it will be the spring of 1951 before any new work can start. It has been difficult enough to get the armed services to take a proper interest in the strategic significance of this northern Territory—witness, for instance, the wartime tendency of the Navy to forsake Alaska for the more salubrious clime of San Diego. To go all out for military aid to Europe while neglecting an American Territory of vital importance in the air age does not make sense from any standpoint.

Labor Day

As labor celebrates its annual holiday today, there is a great deal of emphasis on its demands and aspirations. Labor is still far from being satisfied with the vastly improved status that it occupies in the American economic system. Secretary of Labor Tobin wishes to see more workers under the Wage-Hour Act, improvement of the old-age insurance system and enactment of a better labor-management relations law. CIO President Murray lays emphasis upon further wage increases, pensions and health and welfare plans. George Meany of the AFL urges more worker participation in politics, and Frieda S. Miller, director of the Women's Bureau of the Labor Department, has spoken out for equal pay for women. It is a healthy sign that these and many other spokesmen for labor are neither complacent nor discouraged. They recognize that much progress has been made in lifting the workers' standard of living, and at the same time they insist in moving forward.

Along with labor's strong demands, however, there seems to go a more realistic attitude than was evident a year ago. An increasing number of wage earners realize that the merry-go-round of higher wages, higher production costs and higher prices does not give them a higher standard of living. There seems to be a keener awareness of the cost of strikes in terms of lost wages. We surmise, too, that many workers today have a better appreciation of the fact that any basic improvement in their living standards must come from an increase of their own output. In spite of their dislike for it, a great many unions have accepted the Taft-Hartley Act and are abiding by its terms. Intangible though they are, these trends of thinking among wage earners are likely to be an important factor in labor-management relations during the years ahead.

Employers for their part have generally accepted collective bargaining as an established institution. Probably they are more keenly aware than ever before of the necessity of maintaining high standards of living for the sake of providing markets for their products. Management and labor are still confronted by differences and problems too numerous to mention, but there are many indications on this Labor Day that the gulf between them is being narrowed. Certainly the facilities for enabling them to work together have been greatly improved. Of course, the conflict between them can never be resolved, but if mutual understanding and tolerance continue to grow it may be possible to adjust their differences in the years ahead with far less wear and tear upon our economic system than the country has witnessed in recent years.

The Bedfellow

Comrade Tito, whose fighter pilots only four years ago were shooting down American planes, has applied to the Export-Import Bank for a loan of 25 million dollars to purchase mining machinery. The strong probability is that he will get it; at any rate, both the American Ambassador in Belgrade and Secretary Acheson are said to be very eager that he shall get it, and the President is also reported to be most favorably disposed to the idea.

It is an illustration of what strange marriages of convenience arise out of a war of nerves conducted on a world-wide scale. There is not the slightest reason to suppose that Tito's love of Americans or his enthusiasm for American foreign policies has increased one whit since August, 1946, when he was lending his utmost aid to the Communist forces in Greece and making all the trouble he was capable of for the occupation forces in Trieste. Nor is it probable that the estimate of Tito's personal character then held by the Department of State has been revised in his favor—at least we hope not. Tito's little family war with Stalin does not make him any the less a Communist careerist and a ruthless tyrant. Indeed, it is largely because he is both that he has been able thus far to hold his own in the war.

Yet Comrade Tito's application puts us in a rather awkward dilemma. We have steadily refused, and, we think, properly, to grant such a loan to Generalissimo Franco, who is also at daggers drawn with the Kremlin, although the daggers to be sure are in his case a greater distance apart. Our position concerning Franco has been in effect that he is no gentleman, as is proved by his treatment of political opponents. The objection seems hardly less applicable to Tito, whether we prefer the word of the Stalinist refugees who have fled across the Adriatic to Italy, or that of the friends of the late General Mihailovich, or that of the friends of Archbishop Stepinac.

Thus any justification of a loan to Tito must be based on grounds of pure expediency. The stronger the position of Marshal Tito in Europe, the weaker that of Stalin. This will be especially true if Tito becomes powerful enough to attract the open allegiance of those elements in the Communist parties beyond the Iron Curtain which are now said to be covertly sympathetic to him, for in that case the result must be a world-wide schism in the Communist Party.

President Roosevelt is reported to have said in another but similar connection that in going across a bridge in the darkness—a very good description, incidentally, of our relations with Tito—it is permissible to take the hand of even the devil, should it be offered. The applicability of the proverb to the present case, it seems to us, depends upon how easily the devil's hand can be relinquished when the bridge is crossed. There are many recent examples to testify that policy based on expediency has led to serious troubles which might have been wholly avoided by a policy based on principles. The early Allied policy in North Africa is one example; the diplomacy of Tehran and Yalta affords another.

This is not to say that Tito should be refused the assistance he asks. It should be, however, on a strictly give-and-take basis, and this, we understand, is the position taken by the Administration, the return consideration to be in the form of strategic materials for our stockpiles. But we should never allow ourselves to forget the kind of man we are dealing with. Nor should we overlook the possibility that Tito and Stalin, who are both much better than we at the game of expedients, might suddenly come to an agreement to postpone their duel over which of them is to be master of the international working class until after the bourgeois forces have been defeated. After all, there is the precedent of the Molotov-Ribbentrop pact.

The probability is that the breach between Belgrade and the Kremlin has gone too far to be repaired even temporarily. Thus the loan is doubtless what the Export-Import Bank, under the present synthesis of politics and finance, might consider a tolerable risk.

Junkets By Air

Defense Secretary Johnson's attempt to save money by denying the use of military aircraft to Senators planning an around-the-world inspection tour has backfired. For Senator Thomas of Oklahoma, who will head the touring group, has ordered the Secretary of Defense to give a detailed accounting of the free flights made by himself, the President, the Vice President and other high officials. He also requests a list of guest passengers on such flights, together with estimates of cost as well as the names of military and civilian personnel who have aircraft assigned for their use. All that is lacking in this comprehensive schedule to complete the picture of what it currently costs the military establishment to supply free transportation is a statement of the number and cost of flights made by members of Congress.

We hope Secretary Johnson will provide that data along with the other requested information and that it will result in a congressional investigation of the uses to which military aircraft is now being put, with special emphasis upon flights by public officials for their own pleasure and convenience. Some of the recent jaunts of Vice President Barkley certainly appear to fall in the category of pleasure trips at Government expense. And a good many of the airplane journeyings of members of Congress undoubtedly cost more than they are worth, although these trips are sometimes highly instructive and are valuable aids to a better understanding of legislative problems.

In the present instance Secretary Johnson raises two sound objections to civilian use of military aircraft: It is more expensive than commercial airline carriage, and the services do not have aircraft to spare for trips of this kind. But, as Senator Thomas points out, there are equally good reasons for requiring members of the executive branch of Government to take to the air in private planes. And, the Senator adds darkly: "If military officials can assign planes to anyone they like, then Congress may have to take notice of it and fix the policy."

In our opinion, that is the answer to the larger issue unwittingly raised by Secretary Johnson's admonitory letter and Senator Thomas' counterattack. The interchange emphasizes the necessity of a congressional crackdown on both legislative and executive pleasure trips at public expense, whether by air, rail or water, and of the issuance of directives to prevent diversion of military transport facilities to nonmilitary use. A vigorous campaign to eliminate the abuses of free travel would mean substantial savings to the Government, in addition to insuring more economical, purposive use of military transport facilities.

Guns Or Oleo?

Whether or not the Senate's relaxation of the ban on purchases of oleomargarine by the Army means that the upper house will repeal the oleo tax, the move is a good one. Until this year, when restrictive clauses were stricken out by both House and Senate, Army appropriation bills had contained a rider prohibiting the purchase of margarine, except for cooking. This was class legislation pure and simple and of a piece with the discriminatory oleo tax which the dairy bloc in Congress so far has succeeded in keeping. A ban on oleo still obtains in the Navy.

There is utterly no dietary reason why the armed forces should not buy oleo. It is a moot point whether soldiers and sailors should be served butter in their rations, but certainly this is a matter for administrative determination within the Defense Department. In the Nation generally as well as in the armed forces, butter ought to stand on its own merits.

Wilson Teachers College

From a one year normal school composed of 20 women students, Wilson Teachers College has risen to a four-year institution fully accredited by the American Association of Teachers Colleges, with one of the highest academic ratings in the country. In one small building at 11th and Harvard st. nw., a student body of approximately 400 students have been working for years to make Washingtonians "Wilson conscious."

We have to borrow training fields and gymnasiums for our sports program; we have to borrow auditoriums for our graduations; our building and equipment are at times inadequate; but we have a spirit and love for our college which bring us together and make us work as a unit for a bigger and better Wilson. It takes a lot of work for us to be a college community with Harvard st. as a campus!

Now there is a plan afoot which may easily wipe out the progress we've made. If Wilson Teachers College is moved into a high school building with high school students, merely to keep that high school in existence, we shall lose our identity completely.

One of the aims of the college is to prepare responsible, mature men and women for teaching the future men and women of Washington. Can this be accomplished in a high school atmosphere?

If, on the other hand, the move would be with the intention of expanding the college and perhaps making the proposed junior college a part of Wilson, the student body would be in favor of the plan. But unless definite plans for expansion and progress are incorporated in the proposed move, the student body of Wilson Teachers College is definitely opposed to it!

Yet you are crippling our dollar earnings by piling up your tariffs against us. More than 25 per cent on British woolens, and 35 per cent on chinaware.

Personally as a worker (engineer) I put every ounce of my energy into my work, and have done so for years, as have many others. And what do I get? Scanty and monotonous food, mostly rationed. Heavy taxation and little to buy. I am at present having my annual holidays. Where? In my back garden, because I cannot raise the money to go away for a change. Do I like it? Positively no! What else can I do?

But you may safely relax. We are not an indolent or ignorant people. We have in the past extricated ourselves from abominable messes and you may feel sure we shall do it again. We ask for a fair hearing, a fair judgment. BRUCE JONES.

Gambling Contradiction

Our present treatment of gambling creates a contradiction in which the citizens are unable to distinguish between right and wrong. Apparently the only reason the race tracks are permitted to continue their gambling business is because they pay a percentage of their incoming revenue from bets to the local government, whereas "the bookies" and "number racketeers" are illegitimate because they do not pay.

Why not force into the open these so-called "illegitimate gamblers" and make them pay taxes? Unofficially speaking, the police officials know the location of many of these gambling houses. It seems unfair to allow one type of gambling and not the other.

Gambling is either legal or illegal! Considering the enormous amount of money that is spent in gambling each year, why not clear up this matter for the enthusiastic, optimistic participants and also for the revenue collectors? If gambling is really illegal, we must eliminate it completely!

Hans Kindler

The untimely departure of the greatly esteemed Hans Kindler from the sphere of music leaves a gaping void at a time when his unique genius and unbounded capacity for his work were at their greatest ascendancy.

Dr. Kindler will be generally remembered as a patron of the arts, polished cosmopolite, man about town, genial host, and of course, the gifted artist of international repute. But concert audiences everywhere will recall him singularly for the large measure of personal warmth and infectious enthusiasm he infused into his music—attributes which he joyously passed on to eager listeners.

In Baltimore, his memory will be revered for the many delightful evenings of concertizing at the Lyric Theater where he conducted the splendid instrument of his own creation, the National Symphony.

Dr. Kindler's career is an inspired prelude to a revitalized era of opportunity and endeavor available to promising American artists and composers whose cause in music he so renlentlessly and valiantly championed.

"Oliver Twist"

As one who admires Richard L. Coe and has respected his column since it started I was distressed upon reading his August 28 piece about Oliver Twist.

For one so intimately acquainted with the entertainment business as is Mr. Coe to take this subject as the starting point of an attack on pressure groups appears dishonest. There has been a very powerful group almost dominating the picture industry here for 20 years under the guise of decency. Why didn't Mr. Coe tackle them? The Oliver Twist incident is more or less isolated and the group participating more or less weak

Also it would seem that the Jews in Germany have some right to be supersensitive. And it is hard to believe that those who chose to show the picture there, did so by accident.

British Character

At one time lately we seemed ready to forget that the forthcoming "dollar conference" with the British is to be a business deal, and that in successful business deals the managerial methods of the parties concerned are secondary to their character, good faith, and mutual respect.

A little scene in wartime England may be of interest in this connection. A hotel in Canterbury had been so thoroughly bombed out that it had only one side wall left standing. On the face of that wall had been posted a sign that read: "Temporarily closed for repairs."

My own guess is that that hotel is today open for business.

Driving Hazard

This regards your articles on men vs. women drivers.

Judge Bosone, while attempting to support the woman's angle of the case conclusively proved the opposite.

She stated that while she was driving downtown she saw a "good looking fellow" look at a "pretty" girl and she criticized him for doing this while driving.

Necessarily, therefore, the judge had to have looked two ways while driving, once at the man to see that he was "good looking," and once at the girl to see that she was "pretty." To thus look twice was twice as bad as the man she criticized, who only looked once.

Another Missourian

I don't want to incite the Oklahoma Indians to riot, but in all fairness to your readers I must claim even another honor for the Missourians in the Nation's Capital.

That lovely picture of "Miss Oklahoma" in your issue of August 30 is not a picture of an Oklahoman. Miss Leeka is from Missouri—Joplin, Mo., to be exact. The Washington Post should realize (by now) that Missourians just can't be stopped.

Matter Of Fact

By Joseph and Stewart Alsop

Labor Day Thoughts

IF ANYONE WANTS to think about serious subjects on Labor Day, a pretty good subject is labor's new politics before all is said and done.

Before long, American labor's political effectiveness will receive a preelection test. As everyone knows, the man the CIO, the AFL, the railway brotherhoods and all the independent unions most want to beat is Senator Robert A. Taft of Ohio. As fewer people realize, the man labor has chosen to defeat Taft is a likable progressive farm leader and chieftain of the American cooperative movement, Murray D. Lincoln, who has been the biggest influence in the Ohio Farm Bureau Federation for many years.

It has already been described in this space how the united political arms of the otherwise warring labor groups selected Lincoln as their candidate after carefully reviewing the whole field, and how they announced their choice to him in early July. More recently, the labor strategists have also enlisted the aid of the Administration in order to get Lincoln to run.

Democratic National Chairman William Boyle, who is wiser than some of his subordinates, promptly agreed to go along when asked to do so by Jack Kroll of the CIO, Joseph Keenan of the AFL, and C. T. Anderson of railway labor's political league. "Ohio is your baby," was the way Boyle put it. Kroll, Keenan and Anderson asked Boyle to get the help of President Truman, and by Boyle's request, the President telephoned Murray Lincoln and asked him to make the senatorial fight.

THE PRESIDENT'S telephone call followed other, similarly inspired requests by Administration leaders, like Secretary of Agriculture Brannan. And the aforementioned test that will come in a few days will take the form of Murray Lincoln's final decision, to make the race against Taft, or to reject the opportunity that has been offered him.

Nothing could have been better planned, or more efficiently organized, than the campaign to make Lincoln a candidate. The fact that Lincoln still is hesitating hints at labor's chief political weakness. For Lincoln has been slow to throw his hat in the ring because he has not been sure of the support of the Ohio Democratic organization. And the divergence between the Democratic organizations and the political branches of the labor groups has been and is, a main cause of trouble for the labor strategists.

On the other hand, it is already very clear that the Democratic Party needs the labor groups more than the labor groups need the Democrats.

Such wise leaders as Jack Arvey in Chicago and Ed Flynn of New York have already acknowledged the fact. And this is not surprising, since the Republicans, with their Taft-Hartley Act, have accomplished a miracle that Franklin Delano Roosevelt longed for in vain. The Taft-Hartley Act has absolutely united the labor movement on the political level. It has also driven the labor movement to organize politically, for the first time in history, in a serious, professional manner.

The CIO-PAC under Jack Kroll, the AFL League for Political Education under Keenan, and the brotherhoods' league under Anderson are not only closely and effectively allied with one another. They are also working with all the independent unions except John L. Lewis' mine workers. Furthermore, their work is real. It gets down to the county and the precinct level. As it continues, it will inevitably become the dominant factor in the northern industrial States. And the Democratic Party has got to carry the northern industrial States in order to win.

FOR GOOD MEASURE, the labor organizations are already invading the South, with the purpose of defeating antilabor Southern Democrats in the same way that they hope to defeat Taft. This campaign is also being meticulously prepared; and Anderson of the brotherhoods has just returned from a survey of the Southern scene with the report that there is "a very good chance" of beating a good many of the more extreme Southern conservatives. In short, the labor groups are out to remake the Democratic Party to suit themselves, while they simultaneously attack the more hostile wing of the Republicans.

This is a major political process of the first importance. It will not bear fruit overnight. Perhaps the efforts of the combined CIO, AFL, and railway brotherhoods may be frustrated in the 1950 election, just as it is possible that Lincoln may not make the Ohio race. But the importance of the process will not be greatly diminished by early failures. The labor effort in politics will now continue, no matter what reverses may be met with at first. And this is something for the sponsors of the Taft-Hartley Act, who started the whole process, to consider carefully and perhaps a little ruefully.

5-Percent Probers Split on Strategy

Rivalry Hit

Navy-AF 'Mistrust' Assailed

By the United Press

Most of the difficulty encountered by Government officials in forming the military policy of the United States lies in the "continuing mutual mistrust" of the Navy and Air Force, the Foreign Policy Association said yesterday.

A report prepared by political writer Blair Bolles on "The Military Establishment of the United States" said this mistrust is a result "of their respective apprehension that each aims to limit the function of the other."

It noted that the controversy was highlighted by the recent House investigation of the Air Force's B-36 bomber program, which was touched off by an "anonymous" document written by Cedric R. Worth, special assistant to Undersecretary of the Navy Dan A. Kimball.

Hearings Open Tuesday

A special Navy court of inquiry will begin hearings Tuesday in an effort to find out whether Navy men had a hand in the document and, if so, whether they committed any punishable offenses. The hearings will be public.

The report said the Military Establishment is "weakened" as a policy-making institution by the interservice rivalry.

It found also that:

"Uncertainty whether Russia can be contained simply by the potential menace of land-based bombers ready for strategic missions with atomic bombs, begets uncertainty as to whether the United States should plan to defend the mainland of Europe and Asia or simply maintain island bases off the shores of the two continents where the Soviet Union has influence."

Policy Called a Compromise

The report said that, during the past two years, United States military policy has been a compromise of proposals submitted by the three branches of the service.

"At present," it said, "the country has an air policy, a sea policy and a land policy.'

As for the B-36 investigation, the report said it had "once more highlighted a single phase of strategy, without exploring the comprehensive strategic problem."

By The Associated Press

Senate 5-percenter investigators are badly split among themselves over the future course of the inquiry.

The breach, it was apparent yesterday, is widening instead of healing. It is extending into the question of what witnesses to call when hearings resume.

And caught right in the middle is Maj. Gen. Harry H. Vaughan, aide to President Truman—with one side trying to haul him to the witness stand for another grilling. But the struggle goes deeper than the witness list.

Differ on Conduct

At the heart of the conflict is a strong—and perhaps irreconciliable—difference of opinion as to the manner in which congressional investigations should be conducted.

Chairman Hoey (D., N. C.) of the Senate Investigations Committee represents one school of thought; two outspoken Republican members of his group, Sentors Mundt (S. D.) and McCarthy (Wis.), the other.

In brief, Hoey, who is supported by the committee's general counsel, William P. Rogers, feels that the committee staff should process all leads and evidence before a witness is confronted with it. This procedure, Hoey feels, leads to a more orderly inquiry and serves to keep the investigation within its proper boundaries.

Mundt Opposes Limits

Mundt, who was schooled in the House Un-American Activities Committee's broader methods, together with McCarthy, don't want the committee to operate solely within any such self-imposed limits. They feel it is proper to pepper a witness with all sorts of questions and then follow up later any leads which might have been developed.

Both introduced this procedure during the first phase of the hearings which ended last week. And both drew sharp rebukes from Hoey several times during their interrogations of witnesses.

Mundt and McCarthy are demanding that Vaughan be recalled. The White House aide spent two sensation-packed days before the committee last week, at the conclusion of which Mr. Truman announced publicly that the general was staying on as his military aide.

Mundt and McCarthy both want to question Vaughan further about the campaign contributions he received from William Helis, wealthy Greek-American oil man and sportsman, and about favors to David A. Bennett, president of the Albert Verley Perfume Co., and others. They say they also have some other leads.

Against Recalling Vaughan

Hoey has announced he is agreeable to calling Bennett and Helis when the hearings resume, but sees no reason "in the world" for recalling Vaughan on the basis of the present testimony. He did not foreclose recalling Vaughan if new evidence is developed. The staff has been going into Vaughan's financial records.

McCarthy also has announced he will demand that Frank Costello, so-called New York "slot machine king," be called to testify. Costello has called himself a "former bootlegger," with so little influence he "couldn't get a traffic ticket fixed."

The Wisconsin Senator brought up Costello's name several times in questioning Vaughan. The witness denied any connection with Costello.

But Hoey dashed cold water on the idea by indicating from his home at Shelby, N. C., that he saw no necessity for calling Costello. He said nothing had been brought out to link Costello with any of the witnesses.

At Least 60 Reported Hurt After Concert by Robeson

Communist parade—milled around outside.

Before and during the concert, there were few reports of violence.

About 1200 policemen—some from 100 miles away—were recruited to stand guard around the area.

Irving Potash, CIO Furriers Joint Council manager and one of the 11 defendants in the Communist conspiracy trial, was hit in the eye by a stone hurled through an open car window, concert-goers said.

Westchester County District Attorney George Fanelli said about half a dozen bus drivers had refused to take their vehicles back to New York City.

Some 150 concert-goers were stranded at the concert grounds until shortly after 9 p. m. (EST) because they had no transportation.

Four buses were ordered into the area to pick them up.

They were the last concert-goers to start for home, police said.

Representative Marcantonio charged in a telegram to Governor Dewey that 500 persons were "being prevented from leaving the grounds by an organized stone-throwing gang."

He protested what he called "complicity of State and local officials in failing" to stop assaults and rock throwing.

New York City police said two buses not connected with the concert had been stoned in Peekskill.

The buses, police said, were carrying Negroes on a trip from Hyde Park, where they visited the Franklin D. Roosevelt Memorial Library.

At least 14 persons were taken into custody during the concert and in violent outbreaks afterward.

Police did not say if any of them would be formally arrested.

Twenty-six concert-goers, police said, were being held in protective custody and would be released when transportation could be provided.

Among them, it was reported, was Leon Straus, international vice president of the CIO Fur and Leather Workers Union and one of the sponsors of the concert.

About six autos were overturned on two streets north of the concert grounds. The occupants of at least one car required medical aid from an ambulance.

One of the cars was set afire, but police quickly extinguished the blaze.

Today's concert, like last week's was for the benefit of the Harlem branch of the Civil Rights Congress. The Congress is on the Justice Department's subversive list.

The protesting veterans' groups included members of the American Legion, Veterans of Foreign Wars, Jewish War Veterans and Catholic War Veterans.

In the concert area Robeson followers had formed two protective rings. In the outer circle, about a quarter of a mile in diameter, were some 1800 persons. Most wore green hats, while others wore Army caps.

Inside the large circle was a smaller circle protecting the area where Robeson sang.

The concert scene itself was a large valley below the road.

The Negro singer, flanked by policemen, arrived at the concert in an auto, sang for more than half an hour, and then was whisked away on a back road.

Robeson sang several Negro spirituals and modern folk songs. He did not give a speech. The crowd at the concert gave him a 10-minute ovation when he arrived.

An extensive public address system sent his voice booming out over the countryside, above the mingling sounds of the drums and bugles of the protesting veterans.

Police confiscated many baseball bats, clubs and pieces of metal from concert-goers, and took the bolts out of a number of veterans' rifles.

When the concert was over author Howard Fast, chairman of the affair, asked the audience of 10,000 for contributions "to combat the un-American filth marching up and down out there."

A joint statement on behalf of the veterans was issued.

It said: "We are not protesting freedom of speech. We do protest his (Robeson's) Communist speech, which does advocate violent overthrow of the United States Government and which is illegal."

John Zimmer, chairman of the parade, dismissed the veterans after about an hour of demonstration and told the men to "return to your homes You'll help us in our cause as well as not help those people in theirs."

Lawyers Guild Demands U. S. Act in Aug. 27 Riot

By the United Press

The National Lawyers Guild demanded yesterday that the Justice Department take "vigorous action" in the August 27 riot at Peekskill, N. Y.

The guild said State and local authorities had ample warning a riot was likely at the concert by Singer Paul Robeson, but took no action to forestall it. Eight persons were injured.

In a letter to Attorney General McGrath, the guild said "such interference (with the constitutional rights of assembly and free speech) as took place at Peekskill must not go unpunished else the pattern will be set for its recurrence."

Major Bills Face Delay Until 1950

By The Associated Press

Congress, now vacationing, is confronted by such a stack of major legislation most of it may be left over until the 1950 session, a checkup showed yesterday.

Leaders are expected to huddle in a few weeks to sort out the bills still to be taken up and those to be cached away until January.

The pending category includes these major measures:

Financing of economic aid to Europe, passed both Senate and House and tied up in conference.

Arms assistance to non-Communist countries, passed the House and now before the Senate Foreign Relations and Armed Services Committees, with early action likely.

Extension of the reciprocal trade agreements program, passed the House and slated for Senate consideration this week.

Financial assistance to Korea, approved by committees of both chambers but not acted on by either.

Pay Raises Included

Pay raises for members of the armed forces, amounting to an estimated 303 million dollars, passed the House and approved by Senate committee.

Increases in postal rates, expected to emerge soon from a House committee, but action by House itself not likely for some time.

Raises in pay of top Government executives, passed by House and approved by Senate committee.

Federal aid to education, passed by Senate and bottled up in House Labor and Education Committee.

Government-sponsored health insurance, tied up in committees in both chambers.

Extension of Social Security program, approved by House committee and slated for House action after recess.

Revision of the farm-price support system, passed House and pending in Senate.

Repeal of the Taft-Hartley law; substitute passed by Senate; pending in House committee.

Statehood for Hawaii and Alaska, approved by House committee but not acted on by House or Senate.

Increases in pensions for veterans and dependents, passed by House but not acted on by Senate.

Increase in minimum wage payable in interstate industry, passed by both chambers and awaiting compromise.

Repeal of poll tax, passed by House but not considered in Senate.

Antilynching legislation, approved by Senate committee but not acted on by either chamber.

Creation of fair employment practices commission to prevent racial discrimination, approved by House committee, no other action.

ish could not pronounce 'wa' and made 'gua' out of it, and since the sound of the letter 'l' is interchangeable with the letter 'r', Guatem-la might result," Collignon said.

Similarly, Nicaragua could be translated to mean "the way of the old man Ra," which in ancient Egyptian would be nkhkh-ra-wa, which means setting or dying sun.

Finds Other Evidence

Collignon said Honduras also seems to mean "the way of the setting sun."

"'Hondu' is a Basque word and means descent into an abyss. Honduras may well mean the descent of Ra into the abyss. These three names, therefore, will indicate the same thing—namely the West," Collignon said.

Other evidence of Egyptian name origins, he said, were found in the Bay of Campeche, north of Tabasco.

"'Kan' is one of the names the ancient Egyptians used to describe their homeland, and the Egyptian word 'petch' means a curve, so that Campeche may mean 'Egypt Bay,'" he said.

appeal for tolerance, collaboration and discipline.

That he chose Germany, torn between East and West, to deliver his historic address was considered deeply significant. He sought to bolster religion among workers and organize them into an effective force against Bolshevism.

The church now has entered the struggle on a more decisive and common level than ever before, observers believe.

In the broadcast to Swiss Catholics, the Pope proclaimed that the watch cry of the church is world-wide peace in 1950. He expressed confidence Catholic forces will overcome materialism which seeks to destroy religious freedom.

In his third speech of the day, the Pope told a group of Italian Catholic high school teachers that the church will never give up teaching Christianity because it fears persecution.

The Pope told the teachers they were "direct assistants of divine Providence."

With a clear allusion to communism, the Pope said some "states, regimes and political movements saw (in education) one of the most efficient ways to gain supporters they need to lead a certain conception of life to victory."

In measured German, Pius told the Bochum conference:

"If recently there has been traced a line of separation, obligatory for all Catholics, between the Catholic faith and atheist Communism, it has been done . . . to construct a barrier which aims at saving not only the workers, but everyone without exception from Marxism which denies God and religion."

"The excommunication decree has nothing to do with the contrast between poor and rich, between capitalists and proletarians, between proprietors and propertyless.

"It concerns the conservation and purity of religion and the Christian faith, the liberty of their action and, with these, the well-being and dignity and the rights and liberty of workers."

In both the broadcasts to the Germans and Swiss the pontiff referred to the tenth anniversary of the start of World War II—in what appeared to be the start of a battle of ideas against the church's main enemy, Communism, which promises to mount through the 1950 holy year.

and wouldn't tie up a plane and crew."

He said the Air Force already is flying some Congressmen around Europe and has made similar arrangements for others without complaining.

"The case of the Thomas subcommittee was somewhat different, however," this spokesman said. "They wanted to go on past Cairo, where the Air Force no longer has any regular routes or any established bases.

"When Congressmen fly on an established route, they simply get off at their destination and the plane and crew goes on about their business. But in this case, it would mean tying up a crew and plane and making special arrangements to use base facilities in foreign countries.

"The Defense Department felt that it would be simpler if the Senators flew by commercial airline."

southwest Virginia. A "high-pressure ridge" from the west, the forecaster explains, kept the rains away and will keep Washington balmy for the windup of the three-day holiday.

The temperatures today will also be as easy to take today as they were yesterday. The high was 83 at 2.48 p. m. and the low was 63 at 6:45 a. m.

However, "it's safe to say," says the forecaster, that the rains may come drizzling in tonight or Tuesday morning, just in time to complicate the travel jam into and out of Washington.

Transportation facilities—airlines, buses and trains—were mostly at ease yesterday, girding for the capacity throngs which moved in and out of town Friday night.

Park police had a "lovely" day they said, and it wasn't all because of the weather. Sightseers were languid and not especially numerous. Auto traffic was dull, and despite a good sprinkling of out-of-town cars, uncomplicated, police said.

The Washington Monument elevator carted full loads up and down all day as expected.

Nats' 3-2 Victory Cuts Yank Lead to 1½ Games; Bosox Win; Bears Wallop 'Skins, 38-17, on Lujack's Brilliant Passing

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

HAVE YOU NOTICED, perchance or otherwise, that for most of the last month the best baseball in the American League has been played by neither the Yankees, Red Sox or Cleveland? The Detroit Tigers and St. Louis Browns, of all people, have been performing like the better ball clubs.

In contrast to the staggers of the three top teams, the Tigers as of yesterday had clicked off 11 wins in their last 13 starts, and the amazing Browns have won 13 of their latest 19. What it may presage for next year's pennant race is uncertain, but it puts a new face on the 1950 program.

POVICH

The Browns' spurt is the more interesting. They may be saving the St. Louis franchise for the Dewitt brothers, who on all sides have been hearing demands that the club be moved to the Pacific Coast, or Montreal or Baltimore.

Until they started winning, the Browns were in foul shape. They had drawn only 195,000 customers through late August, and the shoestring operating Dewitts were wondering how long they could hang on. The picture suddenly brightened.

THE DEWITTS maintained all the while that St. Louis fans would respond "if we could win some games." Last week in St. Louis the Browns drew 13,000 to a game with the Yankees, and won it. Their attendance may yet go over the 300,000 mark.

But more interesting than the attendance figures is the Browns as a ball club. They never looked like a cellar club during all the months they were in the cellar—too many good ball players. The big weakness of the Browns was their pitching, and at shortstop, and their pitching suddenly has started to click with Cliff Fannin and Ned Garver attaining major league maturity.

Next season the Browns will call up from their Baltimore farm the likeliest looking pitcher in the minor leagues, big Al Widmar. They dispatched Widmar to Baltimore last year after a brief trial in the majors, and for that seventh-place club he has already won 19 games to top the International League pitchers.

THE BROWNS have enough good ball players to be envied by the top clubs. They own the best third baseman in the league in Bob Dillinger, and perhaps the best second baseman in Gerry Priddy. Rookie First Baseman Jack Graham is no sylph around the bag, but his home runs speak loudly. And in Dick Kokos and Roy Sievers they have come up with the two best young outfielders in the league.

Kokos' presence with the Browns at a time when the Indians are lacking outfielders is no comfort to Bill Veeck. He let the Browns wangle Kokos out of his farm system in the Walt Judnich deal a couple of years ago. Sievers is that rarity for which every ball club plays. He moved up to the Browns direct from the St. Louis sandlots and has been hitting .300 since the start of the season.

The lone position, outside of pitching, where the Browns are suffering is at shortstop. Eddie Pellagrini was replaced by Johnny Sullivan in the regular shortstop job, which should give you an idea. The Browns took a beating on last year's deal that sent Sam Dente to the Nats. With Dente in their infield, the Browns would need fewer apologists.

THE TIGERS, the real hot club in the league, never did get squared away until July, but now they can claim the league's best pitching even in a year when Hal Newhouser isn't at his best. The revelation on the Detroit staff is young Art Houtteman, who won only one game last season, encountered a fractured skull last spring in an auto accident, didn't pitch until June, and has rolled up 13 wins against 7 losses.

With Freddie Hutchinson enjoying his best season, Virgil Trucks throwing the fastest ball in the league and young Ted Gray coming, the Tigers are deep in pitching. And they plugged their first base weakness by getting Second Baseman Don Kolloway from the White Sox and showing the rest of the league he could play first base, too.

Vic Wertz's 19 home runs have made him one of the most-feared hitters in the league, and the Tigers own in Hoot Evers another tremendous young outfielder. The one weakness of the Tigers is a compound thing, at second base-shortstop. There will be furious dealing by the rich Detroit club over the winter.

Memphis, Tenn., Sept. 4.—The Washington Redskins' gang of rookies made too many mistakes here today and were thoroughly Lujacked as they dropped a 38-17 exhibition decision to the Chicago Bears at Crump Stadium.

Big Johnny, one of Notre Dame's prize alumni, passed the Redskins dizzy for the edification of 14,986 Memphis fans who were seeing their first big-time professional game.

Lujack was on the throwing end of two touchdown passes, one to J. R. Boone and another to Bill Decorrevent. He passed the Bears into easy distance for a field goal and it was his 32-yard toss to Jim Keane that set up a 5-yard touchdown plunge by George Gulyanics.

When Lujack was through for the day the Redskins, seeking their third straight exhibition victory, had been through for some time.

Just by way of showing he can still throw a football, "Old" Sid Luckman went into action long enough to hurl a touchdown pass to Boone in the fourth period. And completing the wreckage was George Blander, a young kicker and passer fresh out of Kentucky, who got off a 6-point aerial to Jim Canady in the last period.

Against this artistry in the air Washington's Sammy Baugh and Harry Gilmer took a seat somewhere in the rear. They and their youthful mates stayed in the running for one half, accounting for a 10-10 stalemate at intermission, but then the Lujack-Luckman-Blander tosses started paying off too rapidly.

Third Straight Pass

The second half was only three minutes old when the Bears took a lead they never lost. Lujack's third straight completed pass, the first two to Keane for 29 and 16 yards, fell in the arms of Boone, and the little Tulsa ace made it over on a 13-yard play.

A Gilmer-led Redskin team could get nowhere in two offensive thrusts at the Bear line, and a Poillon punt was finally carried to the Redskin 39 by DeCorrevent It was Lujack to Kindt for 9 yards and then Lujack to Decorrevent for the last 21 yards.

Fisticuffs almost developed between Washington's Poillon and Joe Tereshinski and the entire Bear bench as the George Halas forces started another scoring push early in the final period when Lujack was roughed up badly by Mike Roussos, the Bears sent their old master into the game and it looked like the same old Sid Luckman.

At the end of a 74-yard march, Luckman whipped the ball to Boone, who made it a 32-yard score as the Redskins' Rob Goode was caught flat footed.

Baugh himself helped toward Chicago's final score. His pass was snatched by big Chuck Drulis at midfield and with seven plays Blander pushed the Bears in to the end zone. Twice he passed to George Benigni, former Georgetown University end, and both times he connected. Ben Bendrick and Canady ran the ball to the five, and from there Blander had no trouble finding Canady in scoring position.

It gave the fans a thrill but the Redskins' final touchdown punch made little difference in the outcome. Washington romped down to the Bear 35 with Gilmer calling the plays, then lost out when Jack Kirby juggled a touchdown pass all the way across the end zone.

Two plays after the Bears took over, Harry Dowda stole a Blander pass on his own 40 and thundered to within 5 yards of a touchdown before he was knocked out of bounds by Bendrick. The Redskins picked up 3 yards on two plays before sending Rookie Leon Cochran, formerly of Auburn, off left tackle for the score.

A nice even exchange of field goals got the game under way.

Saenz moved the opening kickoff back to the Redskin 34, from which point Baugh generalled the Tribe in quick hops to the Bear 13. Downs ran out there, however, and Poillon dropped back to the

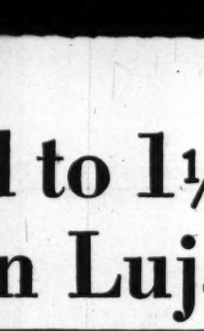
Newhouser Toughest to Catch

THE EASIEST pitcher I ever caught was Elden Auker.

His underhand deliveries came over the plate nice and soft. The toughest pitchers for me to catch were Hal Newhouser and Dizzy Trout when they were breaking in with the Tigers. They had plenty of stuff, but were extremely wild. I think that Maurice McDermott, our fine-looking prospect with the Red Sox, will also fall into that category.

The best pitchers I have caught are the right-handers Bridges and Rowe, and the southpaw Newhouser. Bridges, who is close to 43, is still pitching in the Pacific Coast League. He was a great curveball pitcher, an earnest workman, and had fine control.



TEBBETTS

It was reported that the Yankees offered him $5000 to pitch one of the games in the final series against the Red Sox last year. He refused. Rowe had everything, including a smart head. Newhouser overcame his wildness to become one of the game's great pitchers. I used to get a thrill out of working him. Now I get a thrill out of batting against him.

When a catcher throws off his mask to catch a foul fly, the first thing he must do is get under the ball as fast as he can. His next thought is to catch the ball on the tip of his nose. If he starts to whirl and becomes confused, he should immediately focus his eyes on the ground and then look up. The dizziness will stop and he will locate the ball.

Jim Hegan of Cleveland is today one of the best at catching foul balls. He is also the finest defensive catcher in the American League. He is tall, fast, has a good throwing arm, and is an able receiver. Yogi Berra of the New York Yankees is the best-hitting catcher and Les Moss of St. Louis hits the longest ball.

A catcher fielding a bunt scoops the ball into the mitt with his bare hand, instead of attempting to pick the ball up without the aid of his mitt. This habit saves many fielding errors during the course of a season.

I attempted a bare-hand pickup on a bunt off the bat of Pete Suder of the A's in a game at Shibe Park last year, couldn't find the handle after three tries, and finally sneaked up on the ball and trapped it with my mask. Believe me, it's much easier using the mitt.

The pick-off is, of cours, a defensive aid to the team. The catcher should try to use it without a pitchout. For example, with a man on first base, and a pull hitter at bat, the catcher gives the sign to the first baseman and then signals for a pitch which the batter cannot hit into right field. Many a time the base runner will be forced at second because of his slow start after the attempted pick-off.

I will always remember a bawling out I received from Jack Flynn, my college coach, for throwing the ball into left field on an attempted pick-off at third base in a game in which we were leading, 8-0. He pointed out that my blunder cost our pitcher a shutout.

The catcher should never attempt a pick-off with one or no

Harris Goes Route, Gets Fine Backing From Mates

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

Those meek little Nats crawled out of their last place shell and slapped down the lordly Yankees yesterday, 3-2.

The defeat was only the fifth the Nats have pinned on the league-leaders this year, but it was the biggest by far. It reduced the Bombers' first-place margin over the Red Sox, who trimmed the A's again, to a mere 1½ games.

To the screaming delight of the 17,877 Griffith Stadium customers, Mickey Harris went the route to score his second victory as a Nat, Although constantly on the verge of being upended.

Weakened in Sixth

From the fourth through the eighth, the curly-haired southpaw was chin-deep in trouble, but only in the sixth inning when the Yankees scored their two runs was he unable to meet the crisis.

He gave up 11 hits, including two doubles and a pair of triples, but Harris had it when he needed it and southpawed the Nats out of their latest losing streak, four straight.

Harris was backed up by a 10-hit Nat attack against Ed Lopat and a flawless defense which included several downright brilliant plays by chunky Eddie Yost.

Al Evans doubled with two aboard in the second to stake Harris to a 2-0 lead and Eddie Robinson's double gave the former Boston hurler a 3-0 advantage in the next inning.

It Was Too Late, Then

Lopat permitted only three singles in the last five innings, but the Nats didn't need 'em, as Harris weathered storm after storm to make his early advantage stand up.

Mickey walked only one man and fanned two, both strikeouts coming at perilous times.

He zipped a third strike by Johnny Lindell with two on and two out in the fourth and in the eighth he did the same thing to Bobby Brown under identical circumstances.

In the third inning, Fenton Mole tripled to right with one away, but the Yankees couldn't bring him in. In the seventh, Lopat doubled with one away and one out later Gerry Coleman beat out an infield hit, but once again Harris escaped unscathed as Yost leaped into the air to make a one-handed catch of Hank Bauer's wicked line drive, ticketed for two bases.

Both Runners Score

Al Kozar legged out an infield hit and Sam Dente dropped a soft single into right to set the stage for the productive second inning.

Evans followed with a line double to left to score both runners and a moment later went to third as Harris drilled a single into short left. Yost, however, broke up the rally by rapping into a double play.

The third Nat run was a bing-bang transaction. With two away, Clyde Vollmer laced out the first of his two singles and Eddie Robinson followed with a double to right to drive him in. Lopat was in mild trouble again in the fourth and fifth, but double plays got him over the hump. After that, the Nats were easy prey for him, but the

Cards Win 2 From Cincy To Hike Lead

St. Louis, Sept. 4 (AP).—A pair of returned Mexican League jumpers—Max Lanier and Fred Martin—backed by the rest of the heavy-hitting Cardinals, hurled St. Louis to a twin victory over the Cincinnati Reds today—6 to 4 and 11 to 2.

It was Lanier's second victory since his return while Martin posted his fourth triumph this year in the nightcap.

The double-header was made necessary by the 15-inning 9-9 tie last night which was stopped by the National League's curfew rule.

Two infielders, normally better known for snappy fielding than heavy hitting, led the batting parade. Marty Marion homered, doubled and singled in the first game, batting in four of the six runs. He also doubled in the second contest.

Tommy Glaviano sparked the eight-run third inning the Redbirds had in the final game with a grand slam four-bagger.

The Cardinals now lead the Brooklyn Dodgers by 2½ games.

The double triumph made it 11 straight the Redbirds have taken

Dodgers Beat Giants, 6 to 2

New York, Sept. 4 (AP).—Home runs by Pee Wee Reese and Carl Furillo backed up Rex Barney's six-hit pitching today as Brooklyn downed the New York Giants, 6-2, taking the odd game of the series.

Leading 1 to 0, by virtue of Reese's sixteenth homer off Starter Larry Jansen in the first inning, the Brooks iced the game in the fourth with two runs which chased Jansen with his thirteenth setback.

To Succeed Onslow

Harris Mentioned As Chisox Manager

Speculation as to who will manage the Chicago White Sox in 1950 last night turned to Bucky Harris, "Boy Wonder" pilot of the 1924-25 championship Washington teams.

Harris, fired as manager of the New York Yankees last year, now manages the Cleveland-owned San Diego team of the Pacific Coast League and would succeed Jack Onslow, present White Sox skipper.

Onslow's two-year contract still has a year to run, but strong indications are he will be booted out and paid off next month. He has been feuding with Chuck Comiskey, Chisox vice president, and Frank Lane, general manager, over player acquisitions.

Lane, contacted in Chicago, would not flatly deny that Harris will be chosen. At the same time, he practically admitted that Onslow will not return.

"We will stand pat on Onslow this season," Lane said, "but Chuck and I will make up our minds on next year's manager next month."

He quickly added that 'if we do make a change, we would have to go a long way before making a better selection than Bucky. He's tops on and off the field, as far as I'm concerned."

Lane and Harris were in the Yankee organization together in 1947. Lane admitted he has talked with Harris several times, "but only about players."

"I value his advice highly," he said.

Out on the West Coast, where he's trying to steer his Padres into a playoff berth, Harris routinely denied the story.

But from another source in California it was learned Harris is all but signed, sealed and delivered.

Brick Laws, Oakland owner, reportedly told George Weiss, general manager of the Yankees, and Casey Stengel, Yank field boss, that Bill Veeck has agreed to release Harris from his two-year contract so he can accept the Chicago berth.

When the Yankees replaced Harris with Stengel, Bucky told reporters "I'll be back in the American League." At that time, however, he couldn't have had the Chicago job in mind since the Sox had just brought up the 59-year-old Onslow from Memphis to succeed Ted Lyons.

Harris led the Nats to the pennant and world's championship in 1924 and to a second straight American League flag in 1925. In addition to the Nats and Yankees, whom he led to the world's title in 1947, Bucky has managed the Detroit Tigers, Boston Red Sox, and Philadelphia Phillies.

He winters in Washington.

DiMaggio, Williams Pace Bosox

Boston, Sept. 4 (AP).—With Lefty Chuck Stobbs superb in the pinches, the Boston Red Sox defeated the Philadelphia Athletics, 4-2, today for a clean sweep of the 11 games those clubs have played at Fenway Park this season.

Stobbs gave up 10 hits competing against Dick Fowler. Twice the former retired the Mackmen without damage after they had filled the bases with one out.

Dom DiMaggio's double and Ted Williams' only hit of the game—a single—provided the "clincher" in the fourth inning.

Cleveland, Sept. 4 (AP).—Mike Garcia pitched four-hit ball and struck out nine today as the Cleveland Indians blanked the St. Louis Browns before 35,759 fans, 5 to 0. Ned Garver, who allowed the Indians one earned run and three hits in seven innings, was the loser.

It was Garcia's fourth shutout and gave him a season mark of 12 victories and 5 defeats. He walked only one batter and only one man reached second, none advancing to third.

49ers Crush Hornets, 42-7

San Francisco, Sept. 4 (AP).—Crushing the Chicago Hornets with a terrific ground attack, coupled with a deceptive aerial game, the San Francisco 49ers won their second straight All-America Conference pro fotball game, 42-7, today.

San Francisco scored again with a 62-yard touchdown march, quarterback Frankie Albert racing the last 32 yards after faking a pass. The third touchdown saw left halfback Eddie Carr intercept a pass by John Clement and run 40 yards for the score.

Late in the period, Carr again intercepted a Clement pass and on the first play right halfback John Strzykalski galloped 44 yards to the goal.

Strzykalski ran 22 yards to climax San Francisco's 88-yard touchdown march in the third period.

Bethesda Trims Colesville, 13-7

Bethesda scored five runs in the first inning and then went on to romp over Colesville, 13-7, in the feature game of the Montgomery County League yesterday at Bethesda. Colesville, however, has already cinched the league pennant.

Post Starts Williamson's Grid Ratings Tomorrow

PAUL B. WILLIAMSON, top man in America at rating football teams, doesn't boast that he can take the guesswork out of football, but he does boast that his 85 per cent average for 30 years of forecasting is the best in the country.

His deductions were arrived at after compiling 10 months' information on practically every team from Cauliflower Tech to Mighty Michigan. We don't guarantee Williamson's selections, but we most assuredly recommend them. Another thing—there's no extra charge for the information.

Williamson's local and national ratings will be published twice weekly, Tuesday and Thursday, beginning tomorrow.

Williamson's weekly predictions on forthcoming games also will be published.

In making selections, Williamson mathematically considers such factors as scoring records, manpower, coaching, team condition, morale, style and travel schedule.

A statistical summary of college and service football, the Williamson system starts with September games and continues through the Rose Bowl and other New Year's Day games. He has spent more than 10 months plotting the collective values of over 900 teams for the 1949 season.

Through cross-filing and correlating, Williamson presents the following (listed alphabetically) as his "First 10" for 1949: Dartmouth, Michigan State, Minnesota, North Carolina, Oklahoma U., Ole Miss, Southern California, Southern Methodist, Tulane, Villanova.

In the difficult 1948 season, Williamson predicted 2959 wins and 58 ties out of 3550 games for an outstanding average of 84.7 per cent right.

Miss Brough Upset by Doris Hart

By Oscar Fraley

Forest Hills, N. Y., Sept. 4 (U.P.)—Top-seeded Ted Schroeder spoiled Billy Talbert's birthday, 2—6, 6—4, 4—6, 6—4, 6—4, and defending champion Dick Gonzales slammed to a comeback 3—6, 9—7, 6—3, 6—2 win over veteran Frankie Parker today to reach the finals of the National amateur tennis championships.

Doris Hart of Jacksonville, Fla., who conquered illness and an eye operation for a game return to the courts, led the way into the women's finals by upsetting top-seeded Louise Brough, Wimbledon queen from Beverly Hills, Calif, 7—5, 6—1.

Mrs. Margaret Osborne duPont of Wilmington, Del., the defending champion, moved into the finals against Miss Hart by defeating Mrs. Betty Hilton of England, 6—2, 6—3.

Schroeder Rallies

Schroeder, the awkward but efficient Davis Cup ace from La Crescenta, Calif., made his customary slow start and as usual went five sets for victory over Talbert, the New Yorker observing his thirty-first birthday.

Gonzales, the swarthy slugger from Los Angeles, was bothered momentarily by his neighbor's unexpected net charging tactics but soon solved them for an easy triumph.

But an upset appeared probable for a time in the Schroeder-Talbert match when "Longpants Billy," played the best tennis of his long career to take the opening set from the Davis Cup ace.

Talbert smashed Schroeder's erratic service in the second, fourth and eighth games to take the first set. But he bounded back to win the second.

Talbert Wins Third Set

Schroeder's errors cost him the third set also, as he appeared content to adjust his shots and let Talbert take over at the net. Then, in the fourth set, the clouting Californian, who held the national title in 1942, set out to take command. He whipped more power into his service and stormed the net constantly to lose service only twice the rest of the way as he smashed Talbert..

Yanks Sign Casey to Help Page

Hugh Casey, keg-shaped relief pitcher, is coming out of semi-retirement as a Brooklyn tavern owner to work for the New York Yankees.

"Hit-'em-in-the-haid Hugh," as he was known during his rollicking days in Brooklyn, yesterday signed with the league-leaders to help Joe Page with the Yankee relief pitching.

Jobless since August 5 when he was cut adrift by the Pittsburgh Pirates, Casey will join the Yankees in Philadelphia today in time to participate, if needed, in the double-header against the Athletics.

The 36-year-old Georgia-born righthander was one of the foremost reliefers in the business for five years with the Dodgers. His scintillating rescue work helped bring the Bums a pennant in 1941 and again in 1947.

Last fall Branch Rickey gave him his release and Casey caught on with the Bucs this spring. He participated in 27 games, winning four and losing one before he was severed from the Pirate payroll.

Casey's most heartbreaking defeat came in the 1941 Yankee-Dodger World Series when Mickey Owen missed the now-famous third strike on Tommy Henrich, opening the gates for a Yankee rally which beat the Brooks in the sixth game of the set.

Casey's entrance into the Yankee fold brings together the two relief pitching stars of the 1947 Brooklyn-New York World Series. Casey worked in six of the seven games, winning two and losing none, while Page was summoned four times by the Yankees.

With Page overworked and regulars Larry Berra, Johnny Mize and Tommy Henrich sidelined by an assortment of injuries, Yankee Manager Casey Stengel welcomed the addition of Casey to his team.

"With Henrich, Berra and Mize out, we must depend on pitching, not power, to win games," Stengel said. "Every man Casey retires for us will help and I hope he gets a lot of 'em out."

Casey is one of three pitchers joining the Yankees today. Frank Shea, 1947 freshman star, has been recalled from Newark as has Bob Porterfield, both right-handers.

Rippey, Fulton Play for Title

Hot Springs, Va., Sept. 4 (AP).—George Fulton of Roanoke, and Claude Rippy of Washington, today shot their way into tomorrow's meet in the 36-hole finals of the Fairacre Golf Tournament.

Fulton defeated Al Dollins of Newark, Del., and Rippy won over John Rice of Roanoke. Fulton and Rippy both won, 1 up.

Rices tee shot on the eighteenth hit in the lake below the green, but the ball skipped across the water and he pitched on and barely missed his par. Rippy drove the green and had an easy par to win the hole.

Jack Keffer of Roanoke, won from Cliff Andrews of Washington 6 and 5 in the defeated eights. Keffer had five birdies and wound up with a 74.

Evers' Homer Wins for Tigers

Detroit, Sept. 4 (AP).—Hoot Evers' homer in the eighth inning with one on base gave the Tigers a 5-to-4 decision over the Chicago White Sox before a crowd of 18,885 here today. It was the twelfth victory for the Tigers in 14 games.

Hal Newhouser, who marked up his fifteenth win against nine losses, allowed the White Sox 11 hits but kept them scattered.

It was the Tigers' fourth straight win.

Motorless Planes Ride Area Skyways

2000 FEET IN THE AIR, Charles W. Griffith, a director of the Washington Soaring Club, glides the club's Pratt-Read sail plane Sunday with hawk-like grace as he searches out up-drafts to keep his craft airborne. Some participants in the meet have remained aloft for three hours. The Soaring Club and the Civil Air Patrol jointly sponsored the event

2 Gliders Tie For Record In Meet Here

Two of six sail planes competing in the Middle Atlantic Championship Soaring Meet were tied for the endurance record as the three-day meet passed the half way mark yesterday at Beacon Field (Va.) Airport.

Both Kim Scribner, chief pilot for Pan American World Airways, and Roscoe and Richard Christman of Quakertown, Pa., kept the gliders in the air for 3 hours and 5 minutes Saturday. Both planes reached altitudes of about 3500 feet.

The meet will end today, with all contestants getting two more chances to better their endurance, altitude and spot landing records. Today's show also will feature a cross-country race and acrobatic gliding by Scribner, who is world champion in these feats.

The meet is the first to be held in this area. It is sponsored by the Washington Soaring Club and the Washington branch of the Civil Air Patrol.

Sail planes are high performance gliders, especially designed to gain altitude from air currents and stay aloft for long periods. The long, tapered wings are two or three times the length of the fuselage. The Washington club's plane has a 56-foot wing span and weighs 1100 pounds with pilot and co-pilot.

Today's events start at 11 a. m. and will continue all day. There is no admission charge. Beacon Field is on Rt. No. 1, 2 miles south of Alexandria.

CHIP OFF THE OLD BLOCK is Frank Maxwell Andrews, 2, named for his famous air-pioneering grandfather, after whom Andrews Field also is named. Frank shares his parents' enthusiasm for flying. Here the three get together before Allen, his dad, takes off to thrill the crowd at the Gliding and Soaring Meet, held at Beacon Field Airport. "Dad" is associated with North American Airlines

German Photographs Of Poland on Exhibit

Propaganda photographs, showing the German concept of the invasion of Poland 10 years ago, can be seen for the first time in the reference room, prints and photographs division, of the Library of Congress.

German captions tell of happy Polish prisoners, clean barracks, and smiling forced laborers. Part of the collection of F. M. J. Rehse, recently convicted Nazi, the pictures were retrieved from the rubble of bombed buildings in Munich.

Servants Sue To Get Week's Vacation Pay

The Court of Small Claims is to decide on September 19 whether two servants are entitled to a week's vacation pay.

The suit brought by Joseph and Mary Tillman, 762 Gresham pl. nw., seeks $50. It is against George Yandes Wheeler, 2d, assistant manager of three NBC stations, who lives at 2510 Foxhall rd. nw.

The Tillmans claim they began working for Wheeler in 1947 and each year received two weeks' vacation with pay. This year, they received only one week, they claim, and sued for the equivalent of the other week.

Part of the case was argued in July, but it was continued to allow Wheeler's wife to testify whether she promised the servants two weeks annual leave when she hired them. Mrs. Wheeler told a reporter that the servants' employment terminated in June.

This Year's Total Of Cars on Roads Sets Record High

More cars will ride American pavements this year than ever before, but for the first time since the war the percentage increase will decline.

In preliminary estimates released yesterday by the Bureau of Public Roads, Commerce Department, 43,298,000 privately owned vehicles will see service in 1949.

District registration is expected to hit an all-time high of 156,000 cars and 22,000 trucks and buses, an increase of 6.6 per cent over 1948.

During July, United States automobiles traveled more than two billion miles over noncity roads, an increase of 7.5 per cent over July, 1948, and 25.2 per cent over July, 1941.

'New Cosmic Scientist' Sees Atomic War Coming in 1950

Because the Great Pyramid in Egypt is 5000-something-something long and something-something-atomic war will start November 24, 1950.

Dr. Blomquist

At least that appeared to be the gist of a theory outlined here yesterday by a visiting scientist.

The whole thing may be on a par with the guy who used to get up on his rooftop in Cairo, Ill., a couple of decades ago and scream that the world was going to end in 1929. At that, it did for a lot of people.

You could laugh at the Cairo prophet. You might be tempted to laugh at the scientist, except that it isn't polite to laugh at death and loaded guns.

But neither do you have to accept as gospel the promise of Dr. Walter Blomquist that the world will go to hell come November 24, 1950.

The Great Pyramid was built a long time before the atom bomb.

Dr. Blomquist is the father of what he calls Homonomia. He describes it as a "new cosmic science."

So he says the atomic war will last 18 months and that one-third of humanity will be destroyed. America's cities will be destroyed and Washington may be bombed.

And by applying his slide rule to the Great Pyramid, Dr. Blomquist has figured out that the war will conclude on May 23, 1952. Then civilization will launch itself under the banner of Homonomia, which he explains as the science of man.

"I claim that my discovery is as revolutionary in the 20th century in social sciences," he avers with quiet pride, "as were the discoveries of Copernicus and Galileo in physical sciences in the 16th century or the discovery of Professor Einstein in the beginning of this century."

Dr. Blomquist declares he is of Swedish extraction, was born in Finland, is a graduate of Columbia University, 45 years old, and just finished teaching at the University of Havana summer school.

Cubans, incidentally, will be happy to hear that Dr. Blomquist says their island country will be spared the ravages of atomic warfare. This, he insists, is because Homonomia has taken such a strong hold in Cuba and its citizens will be able to utilize cosmic forces to keep the bombs from falling.

So there it is. You can take a slow boat to Cuba (there's still 14 months left us), become a Homonomaniac, and thus escape the day of reckoning.

Or you can stick Dr. Blomquist's prediction in that same musty hole of oblivion wherein lies the promise of the seer of Cairo, Ill.

Railroads Plan Few New Jobs In Virginia Area

The start of the five-day week for nonoperating railroad employes apparently will mean only a handful of workers recalled or new ones hired in Virginia.

The Chesapeake & Ohio Railway has announced that it will add some 2000 additional workers throughout its system. How many of these would be in Virginia is uncertain.

The Seaboard Air Line Railroad has no present plans for recalling employes furloughed earlier this year because of slackened business, according to President L. R. Powell, jr. He said the 40-hour work week will not affect present SAL employment plans.

This paralleled a statement from William A. Aiken, jr., superintendent of the Richmond, Fredericksburg & Potomac, who said the same force will be used.

Aiken said this is the slack season and that if it had not have been for the institution of the 40-hour week some employes would probably have been laid off. He said the RF&P had a surplus during the war, but that some employes may have to be called back during the winter months when the tourist trade picks up. There is always a seasonal pickup in the winter.

The C&O said that 1450 furloughed employes would be recalled and that 550 new people would be hired.

Cell Beating Complainant Back in Jail

Man Who Accused Police of Brutality Is Held on Charge of Assaulting Officers

A Marine veteran, who escaped prosecution on charges of assaulting a policeman six weeks ago, was back in jail yesterday on the same charge, plus one of disorderly conduct.

The first assault charge was dropped when Caspar Gregory, 23, now of 1309 13th st. nw., and his fellow prisoner at the time, Michael J. Sheehy, 1477 Newton st. nw., complained that they had been beaten by police in the First Precinct station cell block.

Early yesterday, Gregory and two other men were arrested after a fracas in the 600 block of E st. nw., in which other officers said Police Pvts. Thomas J. McDermitt and Alvin J. Bailey of the First Precinct were knocked to the ground and McDermitt was beaten and kicked by one man while another one held him.

The two officers answered a radio call about a fight at 4:30 a. m., and said they discovered the fight was over, but an argument was still in progress. They said they advised Robert R. Fowler, 22, of 1322 Newton st. nw., to go home, and he started off.

Gregory began protesting this action profanely, the two officers said, and they decided to put him in their squad car. Then, they said, Richard B. Gregory, 21, a soldier stationed at Fort Bragg, N. C., whose home address was given as the same as Caspar Gregory's, also entered the argument. Fowler, the officers said, returned and joined in.

Then, the policemen said, they were knocked down and beaten.

A watching cab driver radioed his dispatcher and police reinforcements arrived. The two Gregorys and Fowler were arrested, Caspar Gregory after a chase of several blocks.

The three were charged and later released on $600 bond each for appearance in Municipal Court Tuesday.

On the charge six weeks ago that brought about the arrest of Caspar Gregory and Sheehy, destruction of property. Gregory was given a $50 fine or 60 days in jail, and Sheehy was put on probation for a year.

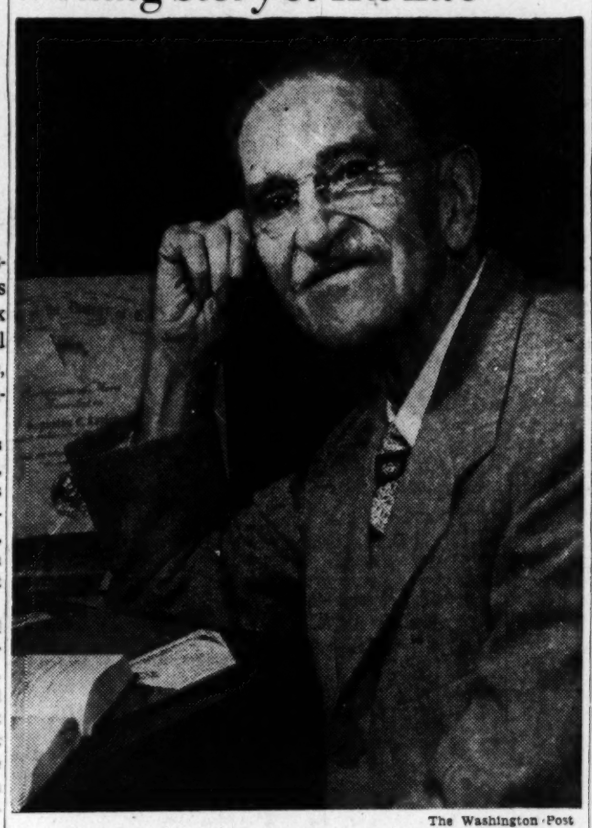
Dr. Taylor, Veteran Druggist, Writing Story of His Life



The Washington Post

Dr. Taylor at his desk

By Tom Schlesinger
Post Reporter

A slightly stooped, silver-haired octogenarian, whose efforts over half a century helped assure pure pills and drug solutions here, is now busily writing his autobiography, "Events in the Life of a Neighborhood Pharmacist."

He is Dr. Augustus C. Taylor, beloved by his fellows as "Old Reliable" or "The Grandad of D. C. Pharmacy" and honored earlier this month when the City of Washington officially recognized his service with a certificate of merit, its highest civilian award.

The occasion was his retirement from the District Board of Pharmacy, which he served as president from 1914 until August 25, 1949. He is the only living member of the original group which made up that body.

Born in Detroit, he spent his summers until the age of 16 with his great-grandparents in Cape Vincent, N. Y. His great-grandfather was a practicing physician and an apothecary there, and it was in his great-grandfather's shop that he acquired his lasting love for the profession he has served.

He helped draft the Pure Food and Drug Act, which did much to clean out spurious drugs, and he was one of the early advocates of an accrediting agency for pharmacy schools. Under the Pharmacy Law of 1906, he was appointed a member of the Board of Pharmacy which since then has passed on every man aspiring to be a pharmacist in the District.

He likes to recall that he is somewhat of an inventor, built one of the first apartment houses in the District, and lived through two heart attacks when doctors told him his days were numbered. His invention was a salve-box top.

Many years ago, he recalled, salves were put up in tin boxes. They got greasy, and the labels blurred. He conceived the idea of placing a transparent glass over the label and attaching it to the box top.

As such, the invention was a mild success, but it made its big splash in allied fields. He granted one man the right to use the idea for putting names on umbrella handles for $200. Another, for the same amount, permission for placing names on briefcases. A third was allowed to use the idea to place names on raincoats.

In 1898, when he built the Roland Apartment House at 2d st. and Maryland ave. ne., apartments were so rare that friends laughed, believing few persons would live in them.

His first heart attack was while driving. The car ran on 2 blocks, across a busy thoroughfare before piling up. This was the first of two times doctors told him he couldn't live. He is still employed by Peoples Drug Stores as a consultant on prescription compounding.

He is an honorary member of the National Association Boards of Pharmacy, of which he has been a perennial delegate since the D. C. Board became associated with the national organization in 1912. He also continues as a member of the National Association of Retail Pharmacists.

He is president emeritus of the District of Columbia Veteran Druggists Association, which he helped found. He also aided in organizing the District of Columbia Interprofessional Conference.

He has owned and sold four drugstores. He married Josephine Marie Kubel in 1895, and celebrated his golden wedding in 1945. They have three children and three grandchildren. He and Mrs. Taylor live at 1723 Upshur st. nw.

As a student, he was pastor in charge of St. Paul's Methodist Church in Poseyville, Ind., and later he served as director of youth activities at First Congregational Church, Malden, Mass., while attending seminary.

In 1943, Mr. Leatherman was appointed pastor of the North Webster charge, North Webster, Ind., site of the Epworth Forest Institute and Assembly. In 1946 he became pastor of First Methodist Church in Middlebury, Ind. He also served as director of young adult work and director of youth work in the Warsaw District of the North Indiana Conference.

He transferred to the Baltimore Annual Conference of the Methodist Church in May, 1948, to become associate pastor with Dr. Albert E. Day of Mount Vernon Place Methodist Church in Baltimore.

D. C. Blessed By Weekend Minus Auto Accidents

Holiday Interval Free From Traffic Casualties; 19 Die In Nearby States

Police, traffic, and safety authorities described yesterday as one of the quietest weekend holiday Sundays in their memory as the District, for almost 24 hours, was spared a serious traffic accident.

Though some mishaps were reported in immediately adjoining areas, the volume of traffic and resulting accidents was small there, too, authorities said.

But in Maryland and Virginia the death toll mounted rapidly as the holiday period progressed. A total of 14 traffic fatalities was reported in Virginia, and five in Maryland.

Worst of the accidents was near Norfolk early yesterday, where an automobile pursued by Norfolk County police at 90 miles an hour crashed head-on into another car in the opposite lane which had been stopped by a road block. Five persons died instantly, and one was severely injured.

Those who died were Essex Brinkley and Emma Lee Bell in the fleeing car; C. A. Jameson, Navy gunner's mate, his wife, and Miss Dorothy M. Ledbetter of St. Louis in the standing car.

Martin, 4-year-old son of Sergt. and Mrs. Leroy J. Webber of Bolling Field, died after he fell from a rear door of his father's car near Winchester, Va., yesterday.

Others who died in Virginia traffic mishaps included Henry Lee Smith, Ammons; Shelton Powell, Lawrenceville; G. Edward Campbell, Kenbridge; Frances Virginia Atchinson, Weyers Cave; Shelby Dene Hensley, Elkton; Barry Mylonbachetti, Front Royal; Anna Mary Kohler, Morrisville, Pa., and Peter J. Clark, Ordinary, Va.

In Maryland, William Frizell, 51, Finksburg, and George Bosse, 50, Rosedale, were killed in a two-car smash at Finksburg on Saturday. Four other persons were injured.

Ruben Jefferson, 88, of Westminster was struck by a car in that city and died on the way to a hospital. Another pedestrian was reported killed at Rising Sun.

Near Ocean City Saturday morning Armond W. Langley, jr., 20, of 501 Pershing dr., Silver Spring, was killed by an automobile when walking on a highway.

At least five persons were injured in accidents in nearby Maryland and Virginia in the first two days of the weekend.

In Alexandria Hospital

James E. Humphrey, 43, who gave his address as 305 N. Henry st., Alexandria, was in Alexandria Hospital. He suffered fractures of shoulder and leg, cuts and bruises, in a crash Saturday night between an auto in which Humphrey was a passenger, and a tractor-trailer. Joe Club, 30, Spartanburg, S. C., driver of the tractor-trailer, was treated for cuts. Police said they were seeking the driver of a car which fled the scene, on Highway 1, south of Alexandria.

In a collision yesterday at Connecticut ave. and Woodbine st., Chevy Chase, Md., Mrs. Grace T. Ward, 68, of 2401 Calvert st. nw., suffered a back injury, police said. She was in a car driven by her husband, Jay Ward, 70.

Chevy Chase police charged the driver of the other auto, Joseph P. Hendrician, 41, of 402 7th st. ne., with failing to halt for a stop sign.

Mrs. Josephine Grantham, 34, of 4705 Chestnut st., Bethesda, was treated at Suburban Hospital for neck injuries as result of an automobile collision in front of the Bethesda police station. Police said a car operated by her husband Kohen T. Grantham, was struck in the rear by one driven by Carlin M. Pearson, 20, Clarksburg, Md. He was charged with having defective brakes, and reckless driving.

VA Releases Rules On Flight Training

The Veterans' Administration has relaxed flight training restrictions for former GIs.

Veterans may now take the training under the GI bill without submitting "complete justification" that the course will be taken in connection with their present or contemplated business or occupation, the VA announced yesterday.

Now prospects must submit only a personal affidavit and two corroborating affidavits showing that flight training will be "useful to him" in connection with earning a livelihood.

In the absence of substantial evidence to the contrary, the VA said it will accept the affidavits as constituting compliance with the law. The VA pointed out that the restrictions on avocational and recreational training will continue.

If a veteran wants to train in any course which is frequently pursued for avocational and recreational purposes (with the exception of flight training), he must continue to submit "complete justification," the VA said.

This is the first lifting of restrictions since the VA blew the whistle on civilian pilot training in July, 1948, after figures presented to the House Committee on Veterans Affairs showed that millions of dollars were being spent for flight training.

A further tightening of requirements under Public Law 266 for training schools catering to veterans was also announced yesterday by the Veterans Administration.

Schools must negotiate fair and reasonable tuition rates with the VA when they have no "customary" cost of tuition, before they may accept veteran-enrollees at Government expense under the bill, the VA stated.

The school is not regarded as having customary tuition charge where the majority of the students are veterans, and the school has started operation after the enactment of the GI bill.

Even if it were established prior to the GI Bill, but hasn't been in operation continuously since, and/or has increased its total tuition charge by more than 25 per cent, the school still falls into this category along with schools adding a new course not previously provided for veterans.

The VA previously had announced tightening of other GI schooling regulations under Public Law 266 which became effective August 24.

How the stiffer requirements would affect schools in the District isn't known now, the VA said, but will be known sometime this week. At that time, a survey on the effect of the new rules here is expected to be complete, Chester F. Naumowicz, manager of the regional VA office said.

65 Road Jobs Nearly Done In Virginia

A total of 65 highway construction projects in Virginia, a number of which will improve motor travel conditions to and from Washington, will be completed within two months, the State Highway Department announced at Richmond yesterday.

Principal job affecting Washington is the new 17.3 mile Shirley Memorial Highway, to be opened Tuesday. This expressway through Fairfax County will serve as a major detour around Alexandria, from the Pentagon to Highway 1 at Woodbridge. The entire southbound portion will be opened Tuesday, and about 10 miles of the northbound lane.

Other projects fairly close to the Washington area or handling traffic to and from the city include a new bridge across the Rockfish River to handle maximum loads of 50,000 pounds between Lynchburg and Charlottesville; nearly 6 miles of new construction on Route 17 west of Fredericksburg, and a four-lane bridge and approaches on U. S. 460, east of Petersburg.

The 65 projects, department spokesmen said, will be in operation at the end of two months barring adverse weather through September and October.

Teach Faith, Veterans Ask

desirable to restore God" to those schools, it added.

For Civilian Control of Atom

The association also approved two resolutions offered by C. Arthur Eby of Post No. 58 of the Department of Maryland. The first recommended continued civilian control of atomic energy and retention in this country of the Nation's atomic secrets.

The other asked the United States to "aid and assist antisubversive elements in China to the extent that may be possible and feasible."

In another action the association censured the Civil Aeronautics Board for forcing the Willis Air Service to cease operations. Because the Willis company is made up of veterans who had previously "offered their lives in defense of their country," the association declared it was unfair to give the company's routes to the established airlines "who did nothing to build them up."

Truman Asked to Investigate

The resolution called upon the President to investigate the matter and see that "these veterans are not deprived of their rights, their money, their jobs and their trust in these United States of America."

During a memorial service at Arlington Cemetery yesterday, Army Comptroller Raymond S. McLain recounted the exploits of some of the division's 10,000 World War II dead who had served under him. General McLain was wartime commander of the Nineteenth Army Corps of which the division was a part for most of its combat days.

The association will conclude its four-day sessions with election and installation of new officers today. James M. Stevens, 50, of Washington Post No. 29 and owner of the D. H. Stevens Plumbing Co. at 1351 Quincy st. nw., is expected to be elected unanimously to succeed John Van Horne of Towson, Md., as national commander.

Before that he had lived in Baltimore where, until his retirement in 1922, he had been a piano merchant. He was born in New Haven, Conn.

The honorary title of colonel was bestowed on him by the late Governor Ritchie. Mann was so delighted with it that he made it a part of his name, even in his telephone book listing.

He is survived by his widow, the former Irma Cadle of Baltimore, whom he married in 1925, and two daughters by a previous marriage, Mrs. Albert Neuman of Dallas, Tex., and Mrs. Joseph Linde of New Haven.

Funeral services and burial are to be held in New Haven Tuesday morning.

General Short To Be Buried At Arlington

Dallas, Tex., Sept. 4 (AP).—The body of Maj. Gen. Walter C. Short, 69, who often accused the War Department of making him the "scapegoat" of the Pearl Harbor disaster, leaves here tonight for Washington.

He will be buried in Arlington National Cemetery.

The tall gray-haired soldier who commanded the Army at Pearl Harbor when the Japanese attacked December 7, 1941, died quietly at his home here last night. He had been in ill health from a heart ailment for several years. Yesterday his condition became critical.

The Jap attack on Pearl Harbor ended General Short's 40-year Army career. A few days after the bombing raid he was relieved of his command. Within a few weeks he retired.

The general was both praised and censured for his actions at Pearl Harbor. For four years—until a congressional investigation in 1946—he refused to tell his side of the story.

"When the entire story is unfolded, I am certain of complete vindication in the eyes of the American people," he said.

Early in 1942 a presidential board of inquiry laid "dereliction of duty" to General Short and Admiral Husband E. Kimmel, naval commander at Pearl Harbor. Kimmel also was relieved and retired.

When the general appeared before the congressional committee, he said he obeyed instructions from Washington as he understood them. He said he had not been furnished with information obtained from intercepted Japanese messages indicating war was imminent.

Time and again he contended the War Department attempted to single him out as "the scapegoat for the disaster."

The 10-man Senate and House committee found Short's and Kimmel's actions prior to the Pearl Harbor attack were "errors of judgment and not derelictions of duty."

"I am satisfied that the testimony . . . fully absolved me from blame, and I believe such will be the verdict of history," Short said afterwards. "As I have stated before, my conscience is clear."

Army and Navy boards of inquiry found that errors of judgment both in Washington and Pearl Harbor had a part in the disaster. They found no grounds for a court-martial.

General Short came to Dallas in 1942 to become head of the traffic department in the Ford motor plant. He retired three years later because of ill health.

The general was born March 30, 1880, in Fillmore, Ill. He was a 1901 graduate of University of Illinois and accepted a commission as a second lieutenant in 1902.

He served in the 1916 expedition to Mexico. During World War I he was on the general staff of the First Division and assistant chief of staff of the Third Army. He was awarded the Distinguished Service Medal.

In February, 1941, he was advanced to the temporary rank of lieutenant general and given the command of the Hawaiian Department.

Survivors include his wife and a son, Maj. Walter Dean Short of West Point Military Academy. Both were at his bedside when he died.

Richmond, Va., Sept. 4 (AP).—Col. Richard Addison Gilliam, former secretary and treasurer of the State Conservation Commission, died here today after a five-month illness. He was 64.

Gilliam, who received his honorary title while a member of Governor Trinkle's staff, served as executive head of the commission for 20 years. He joined the staff of a Richmond insurance firm several months ago. He was a graduate of Hampden-Sydney College and an elder in the Second Presbyterian Church.

Omohundro of Richmond and Mrs. Raymond Baker of Pelham Manor, N. Y.; two brothers, Charles D. Gilliam of Pelham, N. Y., and Thomas Gilliam of Roanoke, and three grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held Monday at the Second Presbyterian Church, with burial Tuesday in Covington.

G. Freeman Pollock Dies; Founder of National Park

George Freeman Pollock, 80, known as the father of the Shenandoah National Park, died from a heart condition Saturday night. He lived here in a nurse's home.

For 50 years owner of the famed Skyland resort, he lived to see a dream come true when on July 3, 1936, the Shenandoah National Park was dedicated by President Roosevelt.

Mr. Pollock was born November 19, 1868, the son of George H. Pollock, a Washington importer and Mrs. Louise Pollock, founder of the first kindergarten in the United States at West Newton, Mass.

Made First Trip in 1888

In 1888 he made his first trip to Skyland (then Free State Hollow). His father was part owner of some copper mines located in the mountain lands comprising approximately 12,000 acres extending from Mary's Rock (the present Panorama on U. S. Route 211) to beyond Crescent Rock in the present Shenandoah National Park.

Mr. Pollock lived at and developed Skyland as a mountain resort for almost a half century. He played an important role in preventing that part of the Blue Ridges from being exploited by lumber companies.

In February, 1924, a commission was appointed to recommend a site for a national park in the southern Appalachians. Mr. Pollock, along with others, believed that the Skyland region was the best site, and with much expense and endless data began a campaign to prove it.

Dedicated in 1936

Finally in 1936, the park was dedicated 12 years after Mr. Pollock and his small group of supporters had pledged themselves to the project.

He was in a Washington nursing home for the last eight months, having been in failing health for some time. He also formerly had homes in Skyland, Va., and Washington.

Mr. Pollock had no immediate survivors.

Funeral services will be conducted at the S. H. Hines Co. funeral home, 2901-07 14th st. nw., Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock. Burial will be private.

Dr. Parker Dies; Fought Tick Fever

Hamilton, Mont., Sept. 4 (AP).—Dr. Ralph R. Parker, codiscoverer of a vaccine for Rocky Mountain spotted fever, died today of a heart attack.

Dr. Parker, director of the National Institute of Health's Rocky Mountain Laboratory, had been ill only a few hours.

He was one of two United States Public Health Service researchers who started out in 1922 to trap the wood tick that was carrying Rocky Mountain spotted fever. The relatively rare disease, known in almost all the States, had a normal death rate of one in five cases in 1945.

Dr. Parker and Dr. R. R. Spencer started the now famous laboratory in an abandoned school house in this little community.

Eventually they produced a vaccine, with which they first successfully inoculated themselves. By 1940 more than 455,000 injections had been given. Today the shots are standard protection in tick areas.

He served as a missionary in Southern Illinois and Paducha, Ky., until 1904 when he was given a parsonage at Clintonville, Wis.

In Memoriam

LELAND, CHARLES G. In loving memory of my dear husband, CHARLES G. LELAND, who left us one year ago on Labor Day, September 6, 1948.
They say you've gone from me, Dear One,
And that for me the waiting's done;
But still I listen as before,
And wait to hear you at the door;
Forgetting that you've gone to stay,
I look for you at each new day;
And walking in night's misty rain,
I think I'll meet you once again.
It cannot be too long a while
That I must wait to see you smile,
And feel you take my trembling hand
To lead me to one more new land.
Until then, dear, I shall be true
To all the sweetness that is you.
YOUR HAZEL.

'Are You a Thespian?' Theater Wing Can Use You on Hospital Circuit

WITH the touch of briskness in the air, you may feel up to taking on some intensive recreation. Be assured that this kind requires more than languorous half-hearted cooperation, but the rewards are comparable to the requirements.

The local branch of the American Theater Wing which takes plays to military hospitals in this area is about to cast "The Male Animal" and a musical revue for October presentation. Last minute rehearsals are now in progress on "Hay Fever" and "Mary's Other Husband" which will start the service circuit in a few days.

To be part of this happy and helpful group of amateur actors, you need talent—well, a little bit anyway—and you must be willing to rehearse several nights a week for a month, and then perform two and occasionally three times a week for the next month.

Transportation to the hospitals is provided by the Red Cross which also books the shows into the hospitals. The troupe leaves from Walsh House at 2020 Massachusetts ave., nw. where all rehearsals are held.

For information about auditions, call the Theater Wing office (DU 0381) any weekday from 10 to 5, except holidays of course. Or drop in at Walsh House and toil up the giant staircase of the elaborate old mansion to the Wing office on the third floor.

Mrs. May Redmond Smith, director of the Washington Hospital Committee of The American Theater Wing, says that there is also need for people talented along other lines since the Wing runs hat designing contests for the bed-ridden men, giving them a mess of leathers, fruits, veiling, spangles and pins to work with. "Sports Smokers," quiz shows and hobby demonstrations are held. Members of the FBI display interesting oddities connected with their work and variety acts of all kinds are presented. For these activities, Mrs. Smith usually enlists semi-professional people, but you might fall into that category without knowing it yourself. If there's something along these lines you can do, buzz the Wing office and see what's up.

AMATEUR acting groups other than the Theater Wing which are getting ready to cast fall productions include the Fairlington Players and the Foundry Players. The Fairlington group holds a workshop in acting and technical stage craft on Tuesdays at 8:15 p. m. at St. Clement's Episcopal Church in Arlington. The Foundry Players, who meet at Foundry Methodist Church at 16th and P sts. nw., will hold their first gathering of the fall Thursday at 8. Interested people are invited to attend. For further information about the Foundry Players call Miss Vivian Elliott, DI. 0642. For additional information about the Fairlington group call Edward McCrensky, OV. 0871.

LOOKING for fresh ideas on redecorating your living room? Remodeling your old house? Maybe even building a new one?

Then be sure to visit the "Homes of '49" exhibit of 23 model houses, which opens next Sunday. It's sponsored by The Washington Post, will continue through October 2.

Nine of the houses are being completely decorated by Washington furniture stores. There'll be plenty of beauty and variety in the lot—everything from suave, modern interiors to richly lovely traditional rooms. Best of all everything used in decorating them will be available right here in Washington.

The homes are located in various sections of the city and its suburbs—Chevy Chase, Arlington, Fairfax County, to name a few. In the Real Estate Section of the Post next Sunday, you'll find a map that shows you how to reach them. It will be a fine way to spend Sunday afternoon. (They open at noon, close at dark.) If you want to go on a week day, remember opening time then is 2 p. m., with the closing still at dark.

NATIVE Washingtonians, so the saying goes, are as rare as five-cent cigars. If this is the case, the State Societies of Washington are organizations that you should look into.

Most of the State Societies plan monthly get-togethers as well as little parties and teas in between times. The purpose of the societies is to bring people from a State together who might otherwise feel "all alone" in the Capital City. Even the "older residents" of Washington attend the State Society affairs where they can meet homestaters. There is a satisfying feeling, they all agree, in meeting people who know people they know and have been places they have been.

With the New York State Society dance on Saturday, the State clubs of Washington will be in full swing. If you want to be a part of the fun and entertainment, join and attend the functions of your State Society. For information about your society, call your home State congressional office or Nicha Soure at The Washington Post, National 4200, extension 294.

THE very latest styles from Paris will be shown on the "Meet Mrs. Markel" television show Tuesday night at 9:30 over WTTG. Miss Elizabeth Fairall, vice president of Julius Garfinckel & Co., will bring the gowns over, chit-chat with Mrs. Markel about the fashion trends and reminisce about Paris. Mrs. Fairall has just returned from Paris, and Mrs. Markel was both fashion commentator and model there when she was studying at the Sorbonne.

Also on this Tuesday's show will be Mme. Reuchlin, mother of Ambassador Jonkheer Reuchlin of the Netherlands Embassy, who will bring several of her paintings with her. An exhibit of her work will soon be shown at the Museum of History here.

Registration at the YWCA for day and evening classes starts tomorrow morning. Classes are open to both men and women and include instruction in the arts, business, languages, writing, speech, personality, public affairs, bridge, homemaking and cooking. Call ME. 2100, Extension 29 for more information.

Warrenton Holds Its 50th Hunter Show

EVEN the hosts (the Warrenton Horse Show Association) were surprised yesterday when thousands of horse lovers from all over America turned out to view Warrenton's "hunter show," and to help celebrate its fiftieth and golden anniversary.

While hundreds of horse lovers found themselves almost glued to the fence while the most magnificent horses in America stood their poses, hundreds more trekked to a score or more luncheons and cocktail parties planned for the occasion.

Capt. and Mrs. J. L. B. Bentley entertained a large luncheon gathering as did Mr. and Mrs. Melville Church 3d, Mr. and Mrs. Russell Arundel and popular young Martin (Pete) Vogel, jr.

The J. North Fletchers turned their home into a fall garden of flowers while they entertained at cocktails prior to the evening's events at the horse ring. Among those you may have seen at the Fletchers were Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Noland, Miss Katherine Anne Carter, Dr. and Mrs. R. E. Ferneyhough, Miss Harriet Turnbull, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Marsh, Mr. and Mrs. Russell Arundel.

How to Clean Asphalt Floors

What is the best way to care for asphalt tile floors? Can I obtain a pamphlet on this subject? Is a detergent harmful to them? Can a tank type vacuum cleaner clean and care for them as well as an upright? P. M.

The life of asphalt tile is prolonged if the soil is wiped up immediately with a damp cloth or a mild soap and water. When washed, rinse the floor thoroughly and allow to dry. Polish with a self-polishing water emulsion wax. Paste and liquid rubbing waxes contain oils which are harmful to asphalt and should never be used on it.

After thorough waxing all that is necessary to keep the floor in good condition is to remove dust frequently with the vacuum sweeper (either tank or upright type) and rub with a dry mop.

Detergents can be used to wash asphalt when the floor becomes very soiled, but as with soap, the floor should then be thoroughly rinsed and dried.

You can get a pamphlet on use and care of floor coverings, including asphalt, by writing to Consumer Education, Household Finance Corp., 919 N. Michigan Ave., Chicago 11, Ill. When you write, send 5 cents for mailing charge.

We have a Government surplus, seven-man, collapsible liferaft which has begun to leak in so many places that it is impossible to patch it. Could you tell me of anything that could be painted on that would make it water-proof and air-proof again? The leaks are tiny holes. R. S. S.

I've checked paint stores, waterproofing firms and auto supply stores and find no one who sells a product which can be used to waterproof this raft. The only suggestion made was to use tire patches, but as you suggest this isn't practical where there are many small holes. Have any of our readers satisfactorily solved this sort of problem?

Is there any method of saving egg whites for a period of two weeks or longer? N. T. D.

I'd suggest you freeze the egg whites. This method is used commercially for long-time keeping and is found in no way to alter the qualities of the whites. To freeze in small quantities, place them in a small cardboard ice cream carton or a paper cup and place in the freezing compartment of your refrigerator. Be sure to cover the container tightly.

Is there a method of removing the stain from the inside of a pressure cooker caused by hard boiling eggs? N. T. D.

Boil a solution of two teaspoons cream of tartar to each quart of water in the cooker to brighten the inside.

JERSEY is the fabric that's become a fashion. Here it is in all its woolly softness in a two-piece dress which can lead a double life paired with other skirts and blouses. It comes in heather gray, creamy beige, winter navy and green, at the Hecht Co.

Jersey Has It, Designers Say

Fashion is in a state! The state of Jersey.

Jersey—packable, lovable, snuggable wool jersey—is fashion's darling this year. It drapes beautifully, tailors crisply, doesn't crease or crush. Damp weather—you know the kind—doesn't bother it, and cool weather brings out its feather-light warming virtues.

Designers are using it in pleats and swirls, on the straight and narrow, in every kind of dress from schoolgirl casual to cocktail hour special. And some of them even bring it forth for evening wear.

Besides being packable, a jersey dress is the traveler's best friend because it can be dressed up with clips and pins and a bright silk scarf, or dressed down with a leather belt and a wooden novelty pin.

Jersey drinks up dyes and holds them truly. It knows no age limitations; Jersey is for schoolgirl, college girl, career girl, social gadabout, young matron and the young matron's mother.

Cottage City Policeman Faces Board

Written charges that Police Sergt. Albert Miller of the Cottage City, Md., police department has been seen under the influence of liquor while on duty have been presented to the town commissioners.

The commissioners, who received the accusation Friday night, set September 16 as a hearing date at which the policeman will be given an opportunity to present a defense.

The charges were filed by Donald J. Wilson, 3237 38th ave., Cottage City.

Wilson said he would present three witnesses at the hearing. Miller said he would ask Chief James W. Roberts and Police Pvt. Lynn Plimpton, both of whom he asserted were with him at the time of the alleged offense, to testify in his behalf.

All three officers, who work on a part-time basis for $15 monthly, were fired by the commissioners last July after Henry Caspare, vice chairman of the board, charged them with inefficiency, and one of the three with drinking on duty.

The men were reinstated shortly afterward when it was brought out that dismissal could result only from written charges. Caspare's accusations were oral.

At the time of the dismissals, Chief Roberts declared that Caspare had a personal grudge against all three and particularly against him.

Channel Swim Quit By Second Egyptian

From Press Dispatches

Folkestone, Eng., Sept. 5.—The second of two Egyptian swimmers who tried to conquer the English Channel as a team gave up early today.

The British Press Association said Fahmy Attalla, a slow, powerful stroker, was hauled from the water at 3:50 a. m. British summer time (9:50 p. m. Eastern Standard Time), a mile and a half offshore in St. Margaret's Bay.

His team-mate, Abdel Moniem Abduo, had given up earlier just two miles short of the goal, after a 16-hour battle.

Attahha had been in the water 22 hours and 45 minutes when he gave up.

He and Abdua took off from Cap Gris Nez, France, at 5:05 a. m., British summer time, yesterday (Sunday) (11:05 p. m. Saturday night, Eastern Standard Time.)

Abdou, a 25-year-old employe of the Egyptian Education Ministry, had to be lifted from the water into his accompanying boat after swimming just over 16 hours.

American schoolgirl Shirley May France's attempt to swim the channel, scheduled for Monday morning, has been postponed at least 24 hours because of bad weather conditions.

Shirley May, 17, will make the attempt Tuesday if the weather is good, her trainers said.

Rainbow's End

Pot of Gold Turns Out To Be Bogus

Louisville, Ky., Sept. 4 (AP).—Two little boys really thought they found that pot of gold at the end of the rainbow today.

Bernard A. Smothers, 7, and James Jacobs, jr., 6, saw a rainbow in the sky. Bernard's grandfather, William Smothers, suggested they look for the legendary pot of gold at the foot of the rainbow.

The boys wound up in a vacant lot and there—under a tree—found a shiny 50-cent piece. They continued looking and found 48 more 50-cent pieces in an old black purse.

Triumphantly, Bernard and James rushed back to Grandpa. He called Bernard's father, I. A. Smothers, who said he believed the coins were counterfeit.

Police were notified. Laboratory tests showed only one of the coins genuine, police said, and all the coins will be turned over to the Secret Service.

D. C. Shooters Score Heavily In Pistol Meet

Fort Sheridan, Ill., Sept. 4 (AP).—T/Sergt. Huelet Benner of Fort Knox, Ky., outlasted defending champion Harry Reeves of Detroit in the closing round to win the National Pistol Tournament here today, with a three-day total of 2592 points out of a possible 2700. That was 13 more than Runner-up Reeves' 2579.

Rounding out the top five were Marine Capt. Thurman Barrier of Washington, D. C., third, with 2568; T. R. Mitchell, Quantico, Va., fourth, 2555; and Marine Lieut. Col. Walter Walsh, Washington, D. C., fifth, 2538.

Mrs. Alice Mathews, pretty housewife of Broomall, Pa., took the national women's title with 2300 points. Grace La Londe, Detroit, was second with 2006, while third was Lieut. Carrie Carte, Wave from Washington, D. C., with 1724.

Other men leaders were: Charles Logie, Grand Rapids, Mich., 2525; Phillip Roettinger, Newington, Conn., 2524; O. Pinion, Norfolk, Va., 2522; Walter Fletcher, Washington, D. C., 2519, and Alfred Hemming, Detroit, 2517.

Girl, 15, Admits Killing Her Father, Sheriff Reports

Coeur d'Alene, Idaho, Sept. 4 (AP).—A 15-year-old girl accused of beating her father to death with a hammer was apprehended today as she and her younger brother came out of the woods where they spent the night, Sheriff H. H. Haner said.

The sheriff said Charlotte Burns admitted she hit her father, Charles Burns, 65, with a hammer "several times."

She had been away from the family's farm home only seven times in her life, she told the sheriff. Her father had promised to take her on trips several times in the last few days, she said, and never kept the promises.

Haner said the girl told him her 12-year-old brother, Louis, watched the killing.

4 Men Killed As Plane Crashes On Iowa Farm

West Liberty, Iowa, Sept. 4 (AP).—Four men were killed today in the crash of a private plane on a farm near here. The plane did not burn.

The victims were R. W. Cochrane, Iowa City, operator of a flying service and pilot-owner of the plane; Dale and Gale Kennedy, West Liberty, brothers, and Glen Creno, West Liberty.

The crash occurred about noon on the Dale Mohr farm 5½ miles west of West Liberty, in southeast Iowa.

In Des Moines, Norbert Locke, director of the State aeronautics commission, said after a preliminary telephone check with officials at the scene there was no indication of the cause of the crash.

Kansas Crash Kills 6 as Car Catches Fire

Paola, Kans., Sept. 4 (AP).—Six persons died—five of them in flames—in a hilltop automobile collision here today.

Four occupants of the two crashed cars survived. Two of these, a man and his 3-year-old daughter, were pulled to safety and their blazing clothing extinguished by a passing motorist.

The dead were identified by Paola and hospital authorities as:

Ralph Outcalt, 28, Sapulpa, Okla., midget racer.

Betty Patricia Outcalt, 26, his wife.

Leona Janet Jones Smith, 23, Oklahoma City.

Martha Smith, 6, Oklahoma City.

Charles Maynard, 17, Louisburg, Kans.

The injured were: Robert Smith, Oklahoma City, burned, condition critical; Linda Kay Smith, 3, his daughter, slightly burned; Eugene Brand, 18, Louisburg, bad injuries and cuts; Miss Leota Humberd, 15, Louisburg, fractured hip and head injuries, condition critical.

The Smiths and the Outcalts were driving from Sapulpa to Kansas City where Outcalt was to race tonight. Maynard and Miss Humberd were in a car driven by Brand which was traveling in the opposite direction.

Harry M. Byerly of Paola, who was driving by and witnessed the accident, pulled Smith and Linda Kay from their blazing automobile. The other occupants of the car burned to death.

Maynard died in a hospital as a result of head injuries.

Byerly said the Louisburg car passed him on a hill and he glanced in his rearview mirror in time to see the collision. He said the Oklahoma car, which was towing a trailer carrying Outcalt's midget racing car, careened to one side of the road and burst into flames. Byerly said the gasoline tank apparently exploded.

Maryland Army Officer Slain In Texas Holdup, Family Told

Cumberland, Md., Sept. 4 (Spl.)—First Lieut. Edward L. Helmstetter, 27, of this city was robbed and beaten to death Saturday at El Paso, Tex., his parents and wife learned today by telephone from a fellow Army officer.

Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence J. Helmstetter and the slain officer's wife, Dorothy, later received a corroborating telegram from Maj. Gen. J. L. Homer, commander at Fort Bliss, Tex.

The lieutenant's death came at Beaumont General Hospital, El Paso, a few hours after the robbery beating. Army authorities and El Paso police are investigating, the messages said.

Lieutenant Helmstetter, member of a well-known family here, attended Alleghany High School in Cumberland, and worked for a time for the Celanese Corp. here before enlisting in the Army in 1942.

He was in the Infantry in Europe and received a battlefield commission. Discharged in 1946, he returned to the Celanese Corp. until a year ago, when he reentered the Army. He was stationed at Fort Dix, N. J., until he transferred to Coast Artillery two months ago.

Then he was sent to a special school at Fort Bliss, which he was attending when he met death. His wife and 3½-year-old daughter, Nancy Lee, were staying with Mrs. Helmstetter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. P. H. Lueck, in Cumberland while he was at the school.

Nation's Oldest Incorporated Union Has 75th Session Here

The Machine Printers Beneficial Association, oldest incorporated labor union in existence in the United States, yesterday concluded its seventy-fifth anniversary meeting in the Hotel Statler.

According to Eric Lindberg, executive secretary and only paid employe of the Independent Union of Textile Printers, the association's claim to being the oldest incorporated union has never been disputed.

The craft union was organized in Providence, R. I., January 3, 1874, and incorporated in January, 1887, by the Rhode Island General Assembly. Incorporation preceded enactment of State corporate laws, and to this day when the union wishes to change its by-laws it has to secure the approval of the General Assembly.

The association traces its origin to the Calico Workers Guild in England as its founders all learned their trade there.

For many years it was difficult for anyone but an Englishman to secure admittance to the union, but in time the bars were let down to Irishmen, and when printing on silk began to be practiced in this country Alsatians skilled in the art were admitted to the union, which today has lost much of its original clannishness.

Up to about 1900 the association—and its employers—was confined within a radius of approximately 75 miles of Providence. Today the industry has spread out a bit, and the association counts its "districts"—it is not organized on the basis of "locals"—from Maine to Pennsylvania, and then south in the Carolinas and Tennessee.

Lindberg said there are approximately 550 machines for printing on textile and carpeting in the United States set up in approximately 73 printing plants, and the association has working agreements covering more than 500 of the machines. The association has approximately 800 members with about 55 on pension, he said.

All officers of the association are required to be qualified journeymen printers working at their trade. Lindberg, himself, entered the trade when 15 years old, and worked at the presses for 25 years before being elected executive secretary for the first of his five three-year terms 15 years ago.

Though the association's audited financial statements are made public annually, and its officers have no objection to signing non-Communist affidavits, it still clings to its traditional membership oath which includes a proviso that members shall not disclose the names of the officers. In practice, however, this relic of the days when trade unionism was officially frowned upon is ignored.

No secret is violated when it is reported that William Doviak of Clifton, N. J., presided at the meeting yesterday at which the directors approved the referendum of the membership to raise the weekly dues from $3 to $5 for the purpose of increasing retirement pensions from $10 to $25 a week for members 60 or more years old.

Seventh and eighth grade teachers will attend a special workshop 2 p. m. Wednesday at the Cathedral Club, 1810 N st. nw., on the subject. The Rev. Dr. Thomas J. Quigley, director of schools for the diocese of Pittsburgh, will conduct the workshop.

A Saroyan Boy Has Grown Up

By Richard L. Coe

EVER SINCE I saw him as the cheerful, insistent Western Union boy in Saroyan's short-lived but really wonderful comedy called "Love's Old Sweet Song," I've had my eye on an actor named Peter Fernandez.

Since then Peter's done a batch of parts on stage, radio, television and film. Tonight you'll find him playing the meaty role of Libby Holman's son in "O Mistress Mine" on Meridian Hill Park's open-air stage.

Pete's 22 now and you'll remember him as the naughty Frankie in the recent "City Across the River," for which Drew Pearson did the introduction. Like most youngsters who've spent half their lives in the theater—Montgomery Clift is another—Pete seems older than his years. At heart, I suspect he's a stern idealist, but he has no illusions about the problems of earning a living as an actor. He's seen too many of his acquaintances go for months, even years, without work.

He's got Cuban blood from his father, Irish from his mother. When Dad Fernandez's import business took a dive during the depression, the Irish mother got to looking at subway car ads and wondering how the children who posed for them got paid. That started Peter as a tyke of 5 seated at a Steinway grand off on a career as a child model. From there the theater was the logical next step.

Pete's mother thought the theater was too dirty and smelly for her son and yanked him from the first play that offered him a role. But an Ethel Barrymore play, "Whiteoaks," in a better dusted theater, started him off again. Then the Saroyan play came in and it's still his favorite.

"Watch on the Rhine"

He got his longest run in "Watch on the Rhine," as one of Paul Lukas' youngsters, exiles from Europe. (Ann Blyth, now costarring with Robert Montgomery in the Capitol's "Once More, My Darling," was another). Pete's uncle in the play was John Davis Lodge, now the Representative from Connecticut; other fine names in the cast were Lucile Watson, Eda Heinemann, Mady Christians, George Coulouris and Frank Wilson. This played a birthday performance at the National and a White House party by F. D. R. followed.

Not long afterwards, Pete was back in Washington as a Pentagon Building enlisted man, writing and broadcasting radio scripts, aged 17. He'd just graduated from the Professional Children's High School. Biggest event in Peter's week those days was not the White House, but a buck dinner at F street's 400 Club, now famed for its Navy mural. (There's no connection whatsoever!).

Since getting out of the Army, Peter's been faced with the usual actor's problem—job-hunting. He's done a lot of radio and television. The National saw him with Peggy Ann Garner in "Pick Up Girl" and the Olney last summer in "The Magistrate." Which brings up the problem of age.

Someone then wrote that the play became absurd because Peter's important 19 years was "patently impossible. The boy couldn't be more than 14." Reason for this was Peter had shaved twice that day. The tendency to think of him as a teen-ager has also haunted him since that "City Across the River" movie. Acting a 16-year-old in that was bad enough, but as part of the publicity send-off Universal-International heralded Fernandez as a "new discovery picked from the sidewalks of New York." Which is hardly an encouraging thing to say about a young man who'd earned his living as an actor for a full decade.

Sees His Short Stories

The Fernandez parents have been immensely sane about their theater-bent children (Pete's sister is a Powers model, his brother also an actor). They don't push them along in the traditional stage-parent fashion, insist, instead, that they keep regular hours, play ball with the kids on the home block. This, Peter thinks, has given him a sane approach and a sense of money value that other stage youngsters have trouble with.

It and good off-stage schooling have given him a subsidiary career, short-story writing. He's had 18 fiction pieces published, which is exactly 18 more than some short story majors I know.

To keep from hurting all those youthful, female letter-writers who have been busy writing "Frankie" of "City Across the River," I won't say a word about Peter's constant companion, a bright, prominent Bryn Mawr lassie.

New Type Nozzles Douse Gas Fire In Four Seconds

Fort Belvoir engineers said yesterday they can now douse a 50-foot tower of flaming gasoline in four second, using less than four gallons of water.

The spectacular results were achieved by using high-pressure nozzles specially constructed to deliver 35 gallons of fog per minute at 1500 pound per square inche pressure. At 1000 pounds pressure, the same fire was extinguishe din 10 seconds; at 500 pounds, 13 seconds, and using 100 pound pressure, the engineers took 37 seconds to stop the flames.

Chief advantage of water fog, which differs from spray in the more minute size of the droplets, lies in economy of water, an important factor in fires at sea and in arctic regions.

In fuel fires, fog has the added advantage of not spreading the flames.

Arts Commission Reviews 40 Years

By Lee Grove
Post Reporter

The National Commission of Fine Arts has issued a review of its past four decades as a prelude to its fortieth anniversary next May 17.

The record spans the years from the first problem to come before it, location of the Lincoln Memorial, to the present when it is advising on the renovation of the House and Senate chambers.

The record shows that forerunners of the present commission began as early as the administration of President Washington.

(The first President called a committee consisting of James Hoban and Stephen Hallet, architects; Colin Williamson and Carstairs, builders, and Dr. William Thornton, to meet in Philadelphia for a conference on the design of the United States Capitol.

Park Body Set Up

The World's Columbian Exposition, or Chicago World's Fair of 1893, renewed interest in the fine arts, and the Senate authorized the Senate Park Commission of 1901. Its membership was made up of artists who had taken a leading part in the Chicago World's Fair: Daniel H. Burnham and Charles F. McKim, architects; Frederick Law Olmstead, landscape architect, and Augustus Saint-Gaudens, sculptor.

Charles Moore, then secretary to Senator James McMillan, became secretary of the commission. Moore in 1910 was appointed a member of the Fine Arts Commission and served as a member for 30 years, including 22 years as chairman.

The Senate Park Commission succeeded in rescuing the L'Enfant Plan for Washington from oblivion and outlined plans for public buildings, parks and other improvements.

There was no group, however, to urge on Congress the carrying out of these plans, nor one to supervise the projects. In 1909 President Theodore Roosevelt appointed a Council of Fine Arts, but when Congress disapproved it, as it had of a Commission of Artists in 1860, President Taft dissolved it.

Leaders among the American Institute of Architects, American Federation of Arts and the "Committee of 100"—composed of Washingtonians interested in the orderly development of the Capital—spearheaded a movement that culminated in the establishment of the Fine Arts Commission by an Act of Congress May 17, 1910.

The commission exists primarily to serve Congress and its committees, the President, and the heads of Federal departments and agencies with respect to public buildings, monuments and other works of art.

Projects in First Year

The commission began by recommending that the Lincoln Memorial be located in the place designated by the Senate Park Commission of 1901, in what was then a swamp three fourths of a mile west of, and on the axis of, the Washington Monument, where it stands today.

During the first year, 1910, 41 projects were submitted to the commission. Now the projects submitted number several hundred each year.

Early in its existence the commission established a policy on the heights of buildings in Washington, recommending that they not be taller than 80 or 90 feet to provide a uniform skyline. That no building overshadow the Dome of the Capitol or the Washington Monument became a cardinal precept.

Choosing the location of the Freer Gallery of Art, west of the main Smithsonian Institution Building, advising the Director of the Mint on the artistic qualities of subsidiary silver coinage, reports on war memorials for World War I and World War II, reports on plans for development of Washington and erection of public buildings—these have been among the commission's activities since its establishment.

In 1930 Congress increased the commission's duties by giving it, in the Shipstead-Luce Act, control over the design and materials for private buildings adjacent to public buildings and parks.

Membership in Flux

During the past 40 years, 50 persons have served on the commission.

Today the commission's membership is in a state of flux, with President Truman reported dissatisfied and intending to name new men to the commission. The commission's opposition to the building of a new White House balcony in 1948 is said to be one of the causes of his dissatisfaction.

The term of Chairman Gilmore D. Clarke, dean of the Cornell University School of Architecture, expired in March; terms of William T. Aldrich, Boston architect; L. Andrew Reinhard, New York architect, and Maurice Stern, Mount Kisco, N. Y., painter, are expiring now.

The term of Frederick V. Murphy, Washington architect, ends November 30, and that of Lee Lawrie, Easton, Md., sculptor, ends December 5. David E. Finley, director of the National Gallery of Art, a lay member who was appointed to his second four-year term in May, 1947, is the only member whose commission does not expire this year.

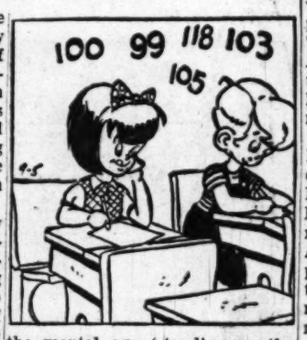
The Family Scrapbook

By Dr. Ernest G. Osborne

'What Is the I.Q.?'



Even in the same family we see that children differ in their ability to learn, in their understanding of things around them. We recognize that there are differences in native ability. Over the years psychologists have developed methods of roughly measuring these differences. From these tests it is possible to derive an intelligence quotient or I. Q.

The theory of the I. Q. is fairly simple. A series of tests, interpreting pictures, repeating numbers, giving definitions, putting together puzzles, etc., are given to large numbers of individuals of all ages. A determination of the tests the largest numbers of individuals at each age level can pass is made. After this standardization is worked out, one can tell whether the child or adult taking the test, as worked out, is above average, average or below average. The I. Q. comes from this.

If, for instance, a child exactly 6 years of age does all the tests which are expected of most 6-year-olds, his I. Q. is found by dividing the mental age (standing on the test) by his actual age and multiplying by 100. In this case it would be 6 over 6 times 100 or 100. If, however, our 6-year-old could do all the tests expected of the average 8-year-old, his I. Q. would be 8 (his mental age) over 6 (his chronological age) times 100 or 133. But more about the I. Q. tomorrow.

The Lyons Den . . .

By Leonar Lyons

NEW YORK.—Charles Coburn was in the Stork Club discussing some old actors he knew and told of the venerable A. G. Andrews, now in the Actors Home on Long Island. Andrews was born in Brooklyn, during an American tour by his English parents. They took him back to London where he eventually established a reputation in the theater . . . One night a young aspiring actor, whose name also was A. G. Andrews, saw Mr. Andrews in a play, and said: "With one A. G. Andrews already so prominent, I can't expect to make my own reputation under that name." And that's how Arliss George Andrews came to change his name to George Arliss.

Dr. Peter Lindstrom at last has been able to resume his surgery work and he expects to continue, despite the imminent return of Ingrid Bergman, his wife . . . One of Miss Bergman's opening lines in "Under Capricorn" incidentally, is "Only people in love know about these things" . . . Eugene Connelly's A. L. P. petitioners, who have been collecting signatures for their candidate to oppose Vito Marcantonio's candidate, induced Marcantonio's mother to sign their petition.

Anatoly Barsov, the Russian who fled here, changed his mind and then was flown back to Austria a few days ago, left some precious American dollars behind him—and probably will have to explain how come to his Soviet superiors. When Barsov and Peter Pirogov, the flier with whom he escaped and who prefers to remain in America, first arrived, they were besieged by magazine offers. True magazine got to Barsov first, and its May issue had an "as told to" story with Barsov's by-line . . . The editors of True sent Barsov the check, but in the meantime he had made other commitments to magazines for a higher fee. Barsov returned the check to True, thinking this would relieve him of responsibility. The Russian's check is being held, undeposited and uncashed.

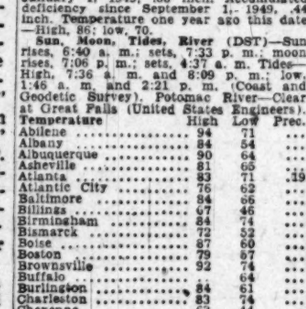
This Funny World



"Fiend!"

TRY IT

GO UP AND OVER WITH A BAR VAULT

Many times we must cross a low fence when hiking cross-country or going to a friend's house in town. You older boys and girls should learn the proper way to master going over these low obstacles quickly and safely. Fences 2 ½ to 3 feet high can be cleared easily, and some of you boys may be able to vault as high as 4 or 5 feet.

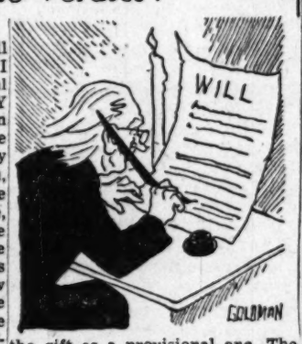
In learning to vault a fence a beginner should select a low one with strong uprights and cross bars. There are several ways of vaulting, but the easiest way is to place both hands on the rail and swing both feet up and around in order to land on the other side. A short run, the pull of your arms, and the spring in your legs, give the combined force necessary to swing your body horizontally up and over the bar.

This is a real accomplishment and gives a lot of satisfaction to be able to surprise everyone with this ability. Don't be fragile, be agile.

TOMORROW—FOLLOW A STRING TRAIL TO TREASURE.

What's the Verdict?

PROVISIONAL GIFT



Among the provisions of the will of Mr. X was the following: "I give my son John my commercial property at the corner of X and Y streets. This is provided that upon my death there is found in my safe deposit box a deed of that property to my son John." Upon X's death, no such deed was found. In the subsequent contest over the estate, John claims the property on the theory that the second sentence above quoted is of no effect, as an effort to circumvent the law which says that a will must be properly executed and that the proviso about a deed was an effort to pass property by an unwitnessed will. What result?

A. John's contention is an effort to have the second sentence blotted out, as if never written, leaving only the sentence that would give him the property outright. But the court will read the two sentences together, construing the gift as a provisional one. The specified condition not having come about, John loses, and the property passes under the residuary clause, if there is one; otherwise as interstate property, with John sharing with others.—F. L. D.

Hats Off to Labor

We give our tribute and our thanks . . . To all who sweat and toil . . . The ones who fill the factories . . . And those who till the soil . . . The carpenters and plumbers and . . . The men who mine our coal . . . The ones who man the ships at sea . . . Or merely dig a hole . . . We honor labor on this day . . . For all that it has done . . . To multiply production in . . . The battles we have won . . . For building up America . . . Through home and foreign trade . . . And for the faith and courage and . . . The strength it has displayed . . . May labor always lead the way . . . Through struggle and through strife . . . To victory and glory and . . . The more abundant life.

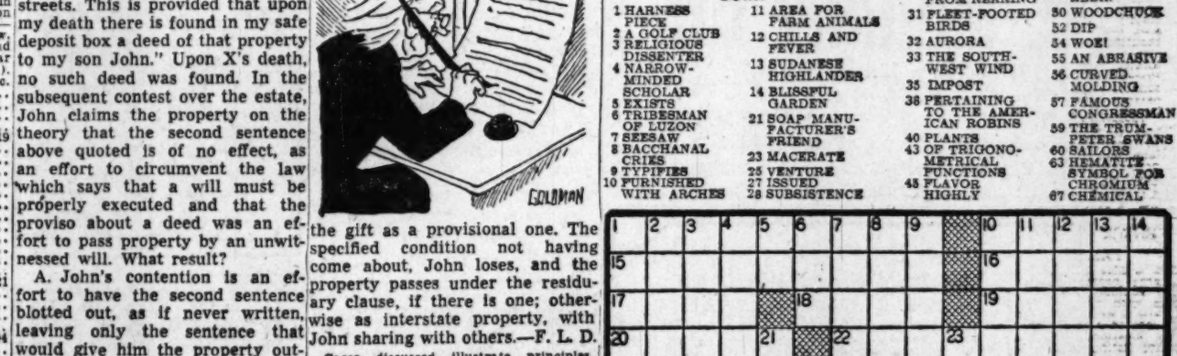
BARNABY



A candle in the window. Curious—
What's all that stuff tied around the pillars?
Mr. O'Malley must be here. To welcome us—
What on earth—
The neighbors must be playing a practical joke.
WELCOME HOME!
No, Mr. O'Malley—
Ellen! Don't come—Cough!—In—Cough! It's a—Cough!—A SULPHUR candle—
Huh?

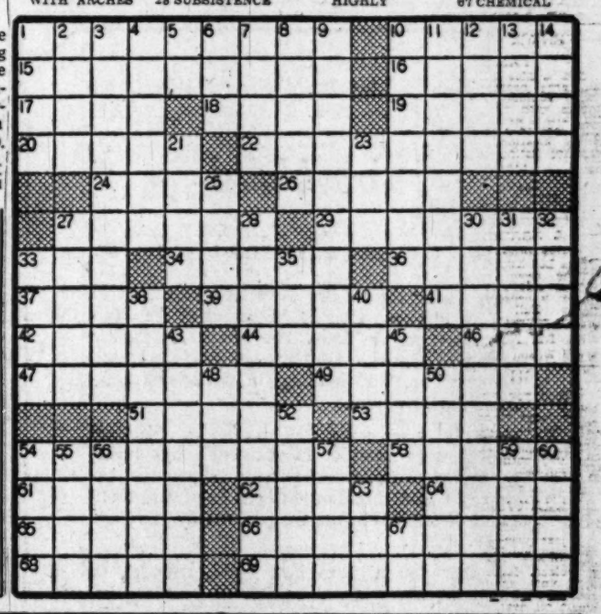
SATURDAY'S ANSWER



THE DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

They're Probably 'Out Of This World'

Jack Ashley of 2604 Lee blvd., Arlington, Va., reports that a New York ave. shop has been featuring "Supernatural Panama Hats" in its window.

MARCH OF PROGRESS

Miami (Fla.) police have just put a radio-equipped horse in service, and by the first of the year hope to have another dozen mounted police equipped with two-way radio.

Capt. Mark Raspberry of our local Park Police has two mounted cops on his rolls, and six more have been authorized by Congress. But he doesn't think they'll be wired for sound.

"Not very practical," says the captain. "Our mounted officers cover a great deal of rugged terrain. They'd need a very long antenna to get good reception, and so far we haven't figured out a practical method of supplying them with one."

What a pity! For a while, at least, we'll be denied the thrill of hearing the announcer with the giant jackpot call:

"Mounted Policeman No. 8 in Rock Creek Park—can you identify this song for $25,000 in cash and a 10-year supply of oats?"

NOW I'LL HAVE TO FILL MY OWN PASTEPOT

Martin Russell of 546 S. 18th st., Arlington, Va., wonders why our August 30 women's page included a recipe for "an enticing June entree."

Well—you know how it is when you send a copy boy on an errand. You've got to expect these little delays.

MAIL BAG

Dear Bill:

Have you ever been down and out?

Have you ever had the feeling that you've lost your last friend?

Have you ever found that, no matter how hard you tried, you couldn't seem to do anything right?

If you have, then you know how the Nats feel now. They've had a bad time of it lately, and they're heading no place fast. But as far as many loyal fans are concerned, we still love 'em.

Your column gets such wide circulation that I would like to use it to appeal to the fans to get out to the park and support our WONDROUS NATS. Please print this.

Lois Marshall
3010 16th st. nw.

Dear Lois:

Yes.

Often.

Definitely.

I love 'em, too. But that doesn't alter my opinion of their ability as ballplayers.

I'll be glad to print your appeal, but I'll have to refrain from joining any mass movement toward Griffith Stadium. I think that when a professional team bids for public support it must be prepared to succeed or fail at the boxoffice in direct proportion with its ability to please the customers. And I am not pleased by inferior play.

Bill

P. S.: Win or lose, I'm "loyal" to my college football team—on the rather tenuous grounds that the players are not professionals. Would you put the Nats in the same category?

PERSONAL NOTES

Mrs. F. B. Scheaffer, 1114 N. Kirkwood rd., Arlington, Va.: Good guess. Here's what happened: The "Off The Record" cartoon for Friday was supposed to run without a caption, because the picture alone told the story. When no new caption line was set, the old line was inadvertently permitted to remain in place through one edition—until we discovered that it didn't make sense and merely confused the joke. Then the offending line was removed.

Clarence N. Smith, Y. M. C. A.: Thanks for the kind words, but the next time you feel generous enough to write such a letter, send it to the manager of the radio station and not to me. You and I know it's a peachy program, but what keeps worrying me is: Does the boss know it?

Ray A. Wachter, 212 Oakwood st. se.: The newspaper that accepts these ads probably does so to avoid charges of "censorship." The real fault, I think, lies with the film companies who produce such rotten pictures and the theater owners who book them.

LABOR DAY

They may not march with measured tread,
Their lines may weave a bit;
But each will know his given part
And make the most of it.

Let banker, broker line the the curb
And cheer them on their way;
The greatest army in the world
Is on the march today.

G. A. Fisher
1442 Spring rd. nw.

SIGN OF THE TIMES?

Henry Wallace's book, "60 Million Jobs," can now be purchased at a local department store for one thin dime.

ENGLISH SPOKEN HERE?

From a recent Give-Away letter: "Little mixed breed puppy wants good home, with long ears."

These things always remind me of the roadside sign: "Rooms for Tourists With Bath." I've always yearned for the day I could trudge up to the door, pulling a baththb behind me, and triumphantly announce:

"I am a tourist with bath. Do you have a room for me?"

HOW'S THAT AGAIN?

Betty Jorgensen of 4204 S. 36th st., Arlington, Va., tells me that she was listening to WTOP's Eddie Gallaher the other morning while Eddie was selling potato chips. He ended up with:

"After you've tried these, you'll never eat another potato chip."

Brookland

...Suburb of Washington east of the Catholic University to Queens Chapel Road, south to Rhode Island Ave., N.E.

Named after the old Brooks estate which was laid out for lots soon after establishment of the Catholic University in 1889. The locality in former years was known as Queenstown, after the Queen family whose land holdings in the section antedated the Revolution.

Since 1881, when many sections of today's National Capital were small or non-existent communities, the service of this Association toward home-ownership and modernization has been helpful to thousands of families in the District, nearby Maryland and Virginia.

Green Prepares for Reelection

By Robert S. Allen

Like ol' man river, William Green, grand old man of the American Federation of Labor, intends to keep right on rolling along.

Robert S. Allen

He will be re-elected for his twenty-sixth presidential term at the AFL convention in St. Paul starting October 2.

The 76-year-old onetime coal miner is hale and active. He travels extensively and speaks frequently. His prestige is at peak level in his own organization and with labor generally. No unior chief is more highly regarded in the White House and in Congress.

In recent years, reports have circulated from time to time that Green planned to retire. There was nothing to them, other than the fact that certain ambitious aspirants would like to get his job. Green has no thought of quitting as long as he is fit and able.

It looks like he will continue to be so for a longtime to come.

Finis on Taft Act Repeal

As far as Senator Elbert D. Thomas (D., Utah) is concerned, the effort to repeal the Taft-Hartley Act is finis for this Congress.

The scholarly chairman of the Senate Labor Committee strongly favors repeal. He was in the forefront of the fight for that earlier this year. But he sees no prospect of a new labor law for the remainder of this Congress.

In Thomas' opinion the issue will have to be battled out in the 1950 campaign that elects the Eighty-second Congress.

"I think labor has an excellent chance to win its case on Taft-Hartley in next year's election," Thomas said. "Labor has learned a lot in the past year. It has matured politically. Proof of that is that we now have labor unity such as never before has been attained in our country. Labor has a legitimate case against Taft-Hartley and I honestly believe can win that case at the ballot box."

Commie Purge

No quarter will be shown Communist elements at the National CIO Convention to be held early in November. President Phil Murray will wield the ax with an iron hand. Leftist leaders and unions will be given only one alternative: either toe the mark without reservation or be ousted. Murray has overwhelming backing to do that and his plans are being carefully organized to avoid any slip-up.

He intends to set the stage for the purge at the very start of the convention. In his presidential address, Murray will scorchingly denounce the leftists and their disruptive tactics.

In the Red

The United Mine Workers welfare fund, most grandiose in the country, is in trouble. It is running in the red.

In the first six months of this year, total outlays exceeded $61,300,000 as against an income of only $44,700,000. Present monthly outgo is around eleven million dollars, with an intake of only five million dollars.

For the time being the fund is solvent, thanks to a 29-million-dollar reserve. That is what is left of a 43-million-dollar cache, built up in 1947, when payments were collected but no benefits were paid. At the present rate of expenditure, this cushion will just about last out the remainder of the year.

That means John L. Lewis either has to find some way to increase the fund's income appreciably or slash benefits. He cannot borrow. The fund is barred from operating in debt.

12 D. C. Units Want to Talk At Roundtable

A dozen Washington civic groups so far have indicated they want to be heard at Senator Neely's forthcoming roundtable on the city's problems and what to do about them.

Neely, new chairman of the Senate District Committee, has promised to call the meeting soon after the Senate returns for business on Wednesday. The West Virginian is due back in Washington Thursday.

Neely said last week he probably would limit the time of those appearing if a large number indicate they want to speak. He also said he might require written statements, if only to aid him in determining what local citizens expect of Congress.
